VOL. XVII. NO. 181. TOLEDO, OHIO, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1892. LAST EDITION. TWO CENTS.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

Local forecast for Toledo and vicinity—On Monday, generally fair, with light flurries of snow; brisk to high northwest winds; colder. On Tuesday, fair, decidedly colder weather.

It's a plan that proves something—but only the makers of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery adopt it. It's a plan to give you what you expect, or take no pay.

If, in any case, their remedy fails to benefit or cure you, they'll return the money.

That proves, for one thing, that it's pretty sure to do all that's claimed for it. And what they claim is, that all diseases or disorders caused by a torpid liver or impure blood are cured by it. For all the many forms of Scrofula, and for the most obstinate Skin and Scalp Diseases, Salt-rheum, Tetter, Eczema, Erysipelas, and all kindred ailments, it is an unequaled and unfailing remedy.

It proves that the "Discovery" is the best blood-medicine, or it couldn't be sold on such terms; and the cheapest, for you pay only for the good you get.

And it proves, too, that nothing else, offered in its place by the dealer, can be "just as good."

Beware of spurious imitations or dilutions, at lower prices.

AWFUL FLOOD.

The Northwest is Under Water.

Mad Torrents Rush Through the Rivers.

Millions of Saw Logs Floating Out to Sea.

Telegraph Wires Completely Prostrated,

While Heavy Damage Is Reported—It Is Generally Believed That Later Information Will Increase It.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 21.—Reports received from the districts visited by the recent storm show a far greater loss than was at first anticipated.

At Sedro, several lives are reported lost and fatalities are reported in Skagit and Stillaguamish valleys from the floods.

Mt. Vernon, Fir, Laconner, Hamilton and other towns are under water four or more feet deep and people are removing their effects to higher ground, fearing a still greater rise.

The Skagit river is so full of logs and drift that navigation is suspended. Nearly a million feet of logs came down yesterday, tearing out the pier of the wagon bridge at Mt. Vernon, snapping the piles off like frail reeds.

The banks of the river are lined with people watching the mad torrent. Several breaks have occurred in the levee and the valleys and towns are the scenes of desolation. The lower floors of the houses are covered with water, while the water in the streets is so high as to make pedestrianism almost impossible.

In one place the break in the levee is half a mile long and six feet wide and the torrent is rushing madly through the town of Fir. Beaver marsh and the town of Laconner are also flooded and the farmers are driving their stock to high ground.

The damage to the farming district alone will reach hundreds of thousands of dollars. The telegraph lines are prostrated in many sections and when communication has been resored a fearful tale may be told.

Railroad washouts are reported from many sections of the country. In many places big landslides have washed out the roadbed for miles. At Samish lake and Ricksham several hundred feet of track have been washed out and at the former place a bridge was carried away. Yesterday a Seattle & Northern train ran into a floating bridge in the Skagit valley and the engine and baggage car went into the river. The fireman was buried under the locomotive and the engineer and baggageman only saved themselves by jumping and swimming ashore.

Word from the town of Stanwood says that that place is flooded and that it was found necessary to abandon the lower floors of buildings owing to the high waters.

Communication with the other districts is cut off except by steamer.

Many here believe, or at least hope that the reports from the flooded districts are somewhat exaggerated, as is usual in cases of floods, but others think the worst is not yet known.

The log jam at the Snohomish railway bridge has grown to half a mile in length and the bridge begins to show signs of weakening. Should it give way the people in the bottom lands will perish.

TIFFIN NOTES.

Tiffin, O., Nov. 21.—The mother of Geo. Heimrich, a well known horseman, dropped dead from a stroke of paralysis Saturday evening, aged 80 years.

Livingston F. Singer, son of Frederick Singer and brother-in-law of Judge Geo. E. Seney, died of cancer of the tongue in St. Louis, Mo., and was buried here today. He was aged 55 years and was a prominent citizen of St. Lous.

Eight-year old Charlie Fox fell in the Sandusky river last Saturday and was unconscious when rescued by Albert Mathias. The child recovered.

GAS TROUBLE.

Delphos, O., Nov. 21.—(Special)—D. E. Baxter has brought suit on behalf of himself and others to compel the natural gas company to live up to its contract with the town of Delphos. When the gas company was granted the franchise to pipe the streets of Delphos a maximum rate for gas was stipulated in the contract. This, it is claimed, has been exceeded by the gas people who are not only vraising the rates, but lowering the supply.

THE ARMY BILL.

Berlin, Nov. 21.—The North German Gazette declares that the kaiser has repeatedly expressed the conviction that the passage of Chancellor Caprivi's army bill is absolutely necessary for the proper maintenance of Germany's military strength.

ARE IN NO DANGER.

The Celebrated Comet is Not Going to Hit the Earth.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Prof. Lewis Morse, the famous astronomer of Dudley Observatory, having looked very earnestly into space in general, and into "the" comet in particular, during the past few nights, and having figured industriously from the data obtained in his observations, has arrived at three important conclusions as to that comet. He imparted them to a correspondent last evening as follows:

First—The comet is not Biela's, or a part of Biela's. For a short time it traveled in the path in which Biela's tramp used to wander, but it isn't doing so any more. It is an entirely new comet.

Second—The comet is distant from the earth instead of 11,000,000 miles, something like 250,000,000 miles. This latter estimate is the result of a rough computation which needs revision and verification, but it is not far out of the way.

Third—The comet is not approaching the earth, directly or indirectly, but on the contrary, is scooting almost directly away from us. There is no doubt about this whatever. No further computations are needed to establish that fact.

These things being so, Professor Ross announces that there will be no collision with the earth, no grand, spectacular display of a comet with a head four times as large as the full moon, no swarm of meteors to illumine the skies like a myriad of monster flies. The comet's engagement with the earth is cancelled, and that is all there is of it.

SIX WERE DROWNED.

Portland, Me., Nov. 21.—The captain of the schooner Edith M. Pryor, which arrived here yesterday, reports the loss of six men while taking in trawls. The drowned men were all from Glouchester, Mass. The other men who were with the unfortunate men before the accident were afterwards on the island of Matinicus.

SECRETARY RUSK

Presents His Annual Report to Congress.

What He Thinks of His Department.

Facts and Figures Gathered by a Purely Republican Source.

Washington, Nov. 21.—The report of the secretary of agriculture has been submitted to the president. The report begins with a comparison of the export trade of the past fiscal year with that of former years, and emphasizes the fact that of the more than one billion dollars representing the exports of our domestic products for the past year, nearly 80 per cent. consisted of agricultural products, thus not only making the United States the creditor of the world for a sum exceeding $200,000,000, the excess of our exports over imports, but relieving our home markets from a surplus product which would otherwise have reduced prices to a point below cost of production.

For a large share in bringing about the conditions which have made these gratifying results possible, the secretary claims credit for his department. In regard to imports he finds encouragement for the farmers in the fact that in spite of an aggregate increase there is a reduction in the proportion of imports, consisting of products which compete with our American agriculture, for while in the fiscal year ended in 1889, 54 per cent. of the imports were competing, only 44 per cent. of our imports for the past fiscal year did so compete. He nevertheless regards imports competing with the products of our own soil as still far too great.

He instances $40,000,000 worth of animal products, $67,000,000 worth of fibers, $27,000,000 worth of hides, $30,000,000 worth of fruits and wines as articles of this kind, and cites the imports of raw silk amounting to $25,000,000 yearly as an instance of products imported, which could with proper encouragement be produced in our own country.

He declares these figures to indicate the main ultimate object of the work of the department, which he defines in brief as "the closest study of all markets abroad which may be reached by our own agricultural products, accompanied by persistent and intelligent efforts to extend them and the substitution in our own markets of home grown for foreign grown products. Since his last report prohibitions against American pork products have been withdrawn in all countries where they existed and 40,000,000 pounds of inspected pork, which without inspection could not have found a market abroad, have been exported. Comparing the export trade for May, June, July, and August of this year as a period in which the effects of inspection can be clearly noted, with the same period last year, he notes an increase in quantity shipped this year of 62 per cent. at an advance in prices which increased values for the same period by 66 1-2 per cent.

He compares prices for September, 1892, with those of September, 1890, the year before pork inspection was adopted, and shows an increase of 80 cents per 100 pounds in favor of this year, an average of $2 per head on every hog sold, an increase in price highly gratifying in view of the large increase in the number of hogs marketed.

The secretary says of the work of his Indian corn agent in Germany that many difficulties attended the introduction of a new food heretofore generally regarded in Europe as not suitable for human consumption. A mixed corn and rye bread was found necessary to secure keeping qualities in a country where all bread is made and sold by the bakeries, and corn grinding machinery is now in use in several mills in that country; one result is the maintenance of the price of corn in the face of largely increased exports, conditions which have heretofore always accompanied a great depreciation in price. The corn exports for 1890, the only year in which they have equaled those of the present year, brought the price down to a fraction under 42 cents a bushel at the port of shipment, against a fraction over 55 cents a bushel this year, a difference aggregating on the exports of the past fiscal year not less than $10,000,000.

With reference to our cereals he attributes the excessive anticipations formed regarding the price for wheat throughout the crop year of 1891 to failure to appreciate the changed conditions now surrounding the production and marketing of the world's wheat crop. "Taking the world throughout, the fat crops," he says, "more than equaled the lean crops of 1891, so that there was actually more wheat grown in that year than in 1890."

Even the exports from Russia, where famine existed in so large a section and where exports were for a time prohibited, amounted to 105,000,000 bushels, nearly as much as the average of the past four years, and more than the average for the past ten years. He says: "The conditions which have at last overwhelmed cotton growers now confront wheat growers. Hence the American farmer must reduce the wheat acreage and so bring production down to the normal demand."

The experience of the department in the domestic sugar industry for the past year confirms his former reports, and shows that domestic sugar can be produced with profit to the grower of the crop and to the manufacturer, provided that the conditions of culture and manufacture insisted upon by the department are secured.

In regard to the sugar industry and its domestication in this country, the secretary says there is nothing to add to what he had to offer a year ago on this subject beyond the fact that all the experiments conducted by the department both in the laboratories and in the field at the special experiment stations established for that purpose confirm the hopeful anticipations he then expressed as to the possibility of this country in course of time supplying its own sugar. Enough has been done to show clearly that in various sections of this country either beet, sorghum, or cane sugar can be produced with profit to the grower of the crop and to the manufacturer, provided the conditions of culture and manufacture indicated in the special reports made by this department on the subject shall be observed. The difficulties that exist are those of an economic character—difficulties which it seems evident that time and necessity will gradually remove.

The rainfall experiments, he says, are being made as congress directed, but the facts in his possession do not, in his opinion, justify the anticipations formed by the believers in this method of artificial rain making.

FOR THE POLE.

Peary Will Take Another Trip to the North.

Washington, Nov. 21.—Civil Engineer Peary of the navy will be allowed to make his second trip toward the north pole. The secretary of the navy will today sign the order granting to Mr. Peary the three years' leave of absence which was asked for by him by the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Science.

IT WAS UNPARDONABLE.

Veteran Railroad Men Out of Jobs on Account of Carelessness.

Lima, O., Nov. 21.—E. O. Thomas, better known as "Pap" Thomas, one of the oldest and most popular passenger conductors of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton road, has resigned.

The veteran conductor had punched tickets between Cincinnati and Toledo for 28 years and was known to everybody along the line. One day last week he left here in charge of the sleeper, a fast run to Cincinnati, and at Dayton the engine became disabled, but finally pulled out in charge of Engineer Joseph Ayres, another old employe.

It seemed the two old veterans forgot all about passenger train No. 6, northbound, and met her near Glendale, but luckily collision was avoided.

Had they met on the curve there would have been a fearful wreck with a loss of life. As it was a grave mistake the company could not overlook it and they were allowed to resign. Both have elegant homes at Dayton, however, and with the small fortunes accumulated from their earnings will continue to enjoy life.

A MURDER MYSTERY.

The Body of a Man Found Near the Railroad Tracks at Findlay.

Findlay, Nov. 21.—At 7 o'clock yesterday morning a young girl, walking along the track of the Carey branch of the B. & O. Four railroad, about two squares from the depot, in this city, discovered the body of George Thrush, an employe of the Wetherald rolling mill, lying at the side of the track, with one arm stretched over the rial.

The police were at once notified and the body removed to an undertaking establishment, where the only mark to be found was a slight gash on the back of the head. This fact, together with the facts that the gravel in the vicinity of the spot where the body was found bore no traces of being disturbed, and the clothing was free from any traces of having been dragged along the track, is the foundation for the belief that he had been murdered and the body placed on the track, immediately after the passage of the 5:40 train, in the hope that it would be believed that he had fallen from one of the platforms, or had been knocked down in attempting to board the train while in motion.

DISASTROUS BLAZE.

St. Louis, Nov. 21.—At 1 o'clock this morning fire at the car sheds of the Dundell Street Railway company, destroyed the sheds, twelve motor cars, thirteen trailers and two vesibule cars. A lot of electrical machinery was also destroyed. Total loss $80,000.

VILLAGE DESTROYED.

Owensboro, Ky., Nov. 21.—News reached here yesterday of the total destruction by fire of the village of White Plains on the Newport News & Mississipp Valley railroad, in Hopkins county. The fire strated in a vacant store room.

DEED OF A MANIAC.

Overwork Probably Unbalanced His Mind.

Milwaukee Man Commits an Awful Crime.

Himself Wife and Child Hurled Into a Great Eternity by His Own Hand.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 21.—W. R. Binder, bookkeeper for Leidersdorf & Co., wholesale tobacco, shot his wife, his 5-year-old daughter and then himself at 6:30 o'clock this morning at the residence of the family at 876 Cambridge avenue.

The servant girl, Emma Diffent, was the only person in the house which contained the little family, and slept upstairs in a room almost next to them.

About 5 o'clock this morning she heard Mr. Binder get up and go to the bath and return.

About 6 o'clock she went down into the kitchen to get breakfast.

While she was busy she heard two sharp reports in quick succession, but the furnace had the habit of emitting such sharp concussions and she paid no attention to it and went on with her work.

When breakfast was ready she rang the bell, then rang it again and finally went upstairs to call the family.

The door was open and she saw Mr. Binder on the bed with a revolver in his hand. She aroused the neighbors, and when they came in a horrible sight met their gaze.

Mr. Binder lay on his back, dead, with a revolver in his hand and a fearful wound in his head over his right ear.

His wife had her face turned toward the wall and was in the last gasps of death with a bullet hole in her head over the right ear, and the little daughter lay in a small bed at the foot of the bed in which her parents lay and was also nearly dead with a bullet hole over her right ear.

The husband and father held a small revolver close to the heads of his victims covered up in bed as if nothing had happened.

He evidently had carefully planned the double murder and suicide. He held the revolver so close to the heads of his victims that the hair on their heads was singed.

The wife died in about an hour and the child is very low. Binder's death must have been instantaneous. No cause whatever can be assigned for this rash deed.

The family were known to live happily together and no domestic discord could have occurred. He left no explanation as yet discovered, giving a reason for the awful tragedy.

He was about 36 years old, his wife 30 and little girl five. He was a sober, steady, industrious man, of a lively, cheerful disposition and had many friends. It is thought overwork probably unbalanced his mind.

TRIUMPHANT DEMOCRACY!

From Highway and Alley They Rushed to the Rally,

Till Seldom Was Seen Such a Wonderful Sight;

For Grover and Adlai the Masses Cheered Madly,

The Music and Marching 'Twas Just Out of Sight.

The Eloquent Hurd and the Humorous Ritchie—Oh, You Ought to Have Heard Them on Saturday Night.

"To do is to succeed—our fight
Is wag'd in Heaven's approving sight,
The smile of God is victory."
—Whittier.

Lucas, Wood, Ottawa, Fulton.

It is a great quartet, and the best representatives of the four counties participated in the great democratic jubilee Saturday night.

According to the program the first gun was to have been fired at 6:30, but it was just 7 when the initial shot shook the court house.

The streets were packed with people, and for blocks on Adams street in the vicinity of Memorial hall the sidewalks were simply impassable.

The fireworks exhibition in charge of P. A. Allen, C. W. Murphy and Thomas Pertle, began at 7:15 and kept up until after 9 o'clock.

For an impromptu affair the parade was the finest and most enthusiastic perhaps witnessed here in years.

Capt. John O'Connor and Surgeon McBain started the procession shortly after 8 o'clock.

Wood county had over a hundred men in line, and the transparencies used in the Bowling Green jubilee were carried in the parade.

From the rendezvous, corner of Madison and Superior streets, the procession moved to Monroe, to Summit, to Lagrange, to Superior to Adams and to the hall.

All along the line of march the procession was greeted with cheering, shouting throngs. The processionists carried torches, and rockets and Roman candles illuminated the line of march.

At various places along the line red fire was plentifully burned, and at John Bolan's, B. F. Shean's and Joe Gates' the display was particularly fine.

A tally-ho in charge of M. C. Sullivan, was one of the attractions in the parade.

The jubilee did not end at the hall by any means. Tally-hos, band wagons and carriages of various descriptions were forced into the service, and the prominent democrats of the city were serenaded.

Long before 8 o'clock it was impossible to get near Memorial hall.

It was at first decided to divide the speakers and hold an overflow meeting in the court house park, but it was found too cold for out-door speaking and outdoor gatherings, and so this idea was finally abandoned.

The crowd outside good-naturedly re-echoed the cheers from the inside and seemed to enjoy the occasion immensely.

At Memorial Hall.

The meeting in Memorial Hall was as successful as any other part of the demonstration. It was the most enthusiastic and patriotic political gathering ever held in this city. Spontaneity of popular feeling was its chief characteristic, both in the tone of the speakers and their reception by the vast audience.

Long before the hour set for the gathering a crowd stood waiting for entrance, and reaching from the door down the wide steps of the hall and overflowing the street. The facade was lighted up with red fire, a cannon boomed in the adjacent park, and multitudes gathered all along the streets in the vicinity, while the varied braying of tin trumpets rang in the frosty air.

As soon as the doors were opened, at 7:30 o'clock, the people began to pour in. Among the first to enter were many ladies. An effort had been made to reserve for them a number of front seats; but so many came that a number had to sit in other parts of the hall, and some went to the gallery. At 8 o'clock the seats in the body of the hall were taken and the gallery was filled. Still the crowd grew until the place was packed to the doors, and many were forced to stand. Ladies continued to arrive and were provided with seats. About 8:15 there was a commotion in the rear of the hall, with cheers. The audience rose, and those forward just caught a glimpse of Congressman-elect Byron F. Ritchie, who had walked in, but retreated again to an ante-room, where he and the vice presidents waited for the arrival of others. A band in the gallery at the rear of the hall, consisting of Tony Leon's full orchestra, played a medley of popular airs, which were duly applauded. As the audience waited the coming in of the speakers the glare from the colored fire being burned on the streets and from the rockets and Roman candles being fired outside shone in at the windows, and the notes of the tin horns penetrated into the hall.

The stage was handsomely decorated with flags and was banked along the front with plants and flowers. This work had been done by Neuhausel Bros.' clerks, under the direction of Alderman Hubrich. From the reflector above the central gas jet as suspended a big "rooster," and smaller specimens of the "game" emblem of democracy stood over the names "Illinois" and "Wisconsin" at the sides of the platform.

At the middle of the platform, just under the speaker's stand, was the American shield bearing the stars and stripes and the word "Democracy." On either side of this, up the sides, on the canopy above, and at the back of the platform were numerous mottoes. They were:

"Lucas welcomes Ottawa, Fulton and Wood."

"Ritchie, Ritchie, I've been thinking,
What a great town this would be;
If the Dems. would all skedaddle
And leave the offices to me."
J——s M. A——r."

"'Twas the fall of the ballot,
You know how it went;
And the force of the Force Bill
Is utterly spent."

"When Harrison went down, wheat went up."

"Ashley and Ritchie both go—one to New York, the other to Washington."

"Congressman Ritchie:—Fairness to capital and justice to labor."

"Scribner faced Wickham, and didn't he lick him."

"Cleveland—'Public office is a public trust.' Harrison—'Public office is a private snap.'"

"The people believe in Cleve and Steve."

"Harrison, Hypocrisy, Homestead, Humbug."

"The people demand reform."

"Lucus is a lu-lu cuss."

"Old Wood is the right timber."

"Fulton got up steam."

"Ottawa's tide rolled up the majority."

"The people have grown tired of excessive taxation."

"The land slid one way."

"Ritchie, and not Riches."

"The three graces—the Rooster, the Tiger and the Wild Cat."

"Where is he at? Ask Tom Platt."

"Tammany is not a tiger; it's a bird."

"The Ash(ley) barrel has gone to the cooper shop."

"Carnegie and Cash, Pretense and Protection."

These mottoes were read and repeated and much approved by many in the audience, and the decorations as a whole were very highly praised. They certainly reflected great credit on those who did the work.

It was 8:30 when cheers again arose at the door, and were taken up by the whole audience, as the people with one accord rose to their feet and greeted the arrival of the speakers. Led by Chairman Max Eppstein there marched up the aisle in single file Hon. Frank Hurd, Judge Commager and MacGahan, Congressman-elect Ritchie, Messrs. Frank Baldwin, Charles Roose, A. W. Machen, C. T. Lewis, Wm. Beatty, Geo. E. Lorenz, Hon. L. C. Cole, B. F. Wade, Rudolph Brand, J. W. Canary, Peter Degnan, John Huberich, F. P. Chapin, J. Drummond, Hon. John Ryan, Col. Frank Cheney and P. F. Isherwood. These took seats on the platform where already were all but a few of the vice presidents chosen by the committee of arrangements.

Chairman Eppstein arose, filled a glass with water from a pitcher at the speaker's stand, and was greeted with cheers from the audience and the music of tin horns. He invited Judge Handy and Messrs. Isabel, Marshall and York, if in the audience, to take seats upon the platform, and then spoke as follows.

Mr. Eppstein's Introductory Remarks.

The cup of democratic joy is full, overflowing, this immense outpouring of the people, this jollification over living evidences.

Grover Cleveland, Adlai Stevenson and Byron F. Ritchie, our standard bearers have been triumphantly elected to their respective stations. The cyclone of democratic vindication and victory all over the land is complete. To Lucas county and the Ninth congressional district the committee extends congratulations, thanks and greetings for the noble work done on the 8th day of November.

In order that these grand achievements may be perpetuated, let us organize, and at once. Every school district, precinct and ward should have a perfect and complete democratic organization, so that we may reap still greater results for the cause of true democracy. If we wish to be successful we must work for it.

To our republican friends who have left the sinking ship of protection fallacy and embarked with us in the craft of tariff reform and sound monetary laws we extend a hearty welcome, and to those who are yet on the outer breastworks, badly wounded, we say, come over to us, the latch string is out, our platform is broad enough to take you all in.

On account of the unavoidable absence from the city of Mr. Emery D. Potter, jr., whom the committee had selected as chairman, I have the pleasant duty assigned me by the committee to present to you for your permanent chairman this evening the sterling democrat and well and favorably known citizen, Mr. C. T. Lewis, who will now address you.

Mr. Lewis was greeted with cheers and the blasts of the horns. He spoke substantially as follows:

Mr. Lewis' Address.

I know you will believe me when I say I fully appreciate the honor of being chosen to preside over such a meeting and upon an occasion of this character—an occasion which thrills the breast of every democrat with joy and congratulation and that is filled with consequences of the greatest importance to the people of this country. The victory we celebrate is a victory of men over means—of the people over plunder—of the masses over the few. The result of the recent campaign of education demonstrates that the people of this country are not ready to adopt the republican principle that legislation shall be for the rich, and the rich shall protect the poor. It means the popular declaration that class legislation is not in the interest of the people; that the system of the republican party, of robbing the masses and enriching the few is emphatically condemned. It means a return to democratic government, with equal and exact justice to all; that the Force bill, with all its revolutionary tendencies, is not popular with the majority of the American people; that the people did not approve of the extravagant expenditure of the large democratic surplus to furnish an excuse for an iniquitous tariff to enrich those who contributed millions to republican campaign funds; that that party, held together by the cohesive attraction of public plunder, is relegated to a condition of inocuous disuetude. A popular majority of over a million voters and two-thirds of the electoral college will prevent any attempt at an 8 to 7 commission, or any other expedient by which the will of the people may be thwarted. The next president is a democrat (cheers and bugle blasts)); a democrat of whom all are proud; a man self poised and having in himself the strength he needs to control the destinies of more than 60,000,000 of people. This is truly an occasion to rejoice.

In closing, Mr. Lewis said: "We have with us a man famous in the history of tariff discussion—a man always ready to give a reason for the faith that is in him. I now introduce to you Hon. Frank H. Hurd. (Great cheering.)

Mr. Hurd received a perfect ovation as he stepped to the front of the platform. When order had been resumed, and amid frequent interruptions by the applauding audience, he delivered an admirable speech. He said:

Frank Hurd's Address.

Great revolutions are seldom accomplished without violence. The wrongs they overthrow are generally so fixed in existing institutions that it is well nigh impossible to get rid of the one without destroying the other. Against such destruction are inevitably arrayed vested interests, accumulated wealth, social influence and strong combinations of monopoly. They refuse to be disturbed peaceably, and force is made necessary to compel them to yield to the demands of justice. Armies are organized, battles are fought, human lives are sacrificed, and in the wounds, the groans and deaths of men the wrongs are righted and the cause of humanity advanced. Rare indeed is it that chains fall from the limbs of a slave without an atonement of suffering, or that liberty makes a forward movement without leaving its paths red with the stains of human blood.

But on the 8th of November a revolution more radical and far-reaching than any known to our history was accomplished in perfect quietness. Not in the violence of the strong wind nor in the trembling of the earthquake, nor in the thunder of the storm, but in the silence of the decisions of the court of the individual conscience, and of the expression by the ballot of the popular will. (Cheers).

No army was there to compel its preordained command. No battlefield on which was lost a single life. No conflict in which was shed a single drop of blood. But the revolution worked its result imperceptibly and noiselessly, quietly as the once richly-laden merchantman, scuttled by its plunderies, sinks beneath the wave; gently as the leaves of autumn bury out of sight the fallen trunks and branches of the forest, and peacefully as drops the twilight from tropical skies upon summer seas. (Cheers).

Nor because of its quietness and peacefulness does it lose its significance and power. It is as thorough, complete and comprehensive as if accompanied by contests of legions and the terrors of war. Although the voice was a still, small one, its command is as imperative as though spoken in tones of thunder.

One of the leaders of the defeated party said since the election that it was an order from the people to their servants to reverse the present economic policy of this country. And so indeed it is. Do you appreciate, my fellow-citizens, the significance of such a result? (Cheers).

It means that the days of class legislation are numbered. It means that the law must stop making a few rich at the expense of others whom it keeps poor. It strikes the fetters from the limb of labor and gives it full possession and enjoyment of its earnings. It brings plenty to the poor man's table; comfort to his home, and new happiness to his family. It puts an end to the exactions of monopoly, and the swelling of the law-made fortunes which build palaces to shine and glitter among the humble abodes which gather about them. (Cheers). It brings a new spirit to inspire legislative councils; the old one of greed and selfishness is to be superceded by the new one of philanthropy and humanity. We put behind the chains and fetters of the old and step joyously into the new paths where liberty leads. A new altar is erected before the people. It's lights are lit by freedom's torch; it's decorations are the flowers from freedom's soil, and its sacrifice, no longer made to mammon, is offered up to liberty, humanity, justice. (Great applause).

Yes, fellow-citizens, the days of class legislation are numbered. Plutocracy has been driven from the control of the national congress, and democracy has been substituted in its stead. (Applause). The important question now shall be not what are the rights of wealth, but what are the rights of men. In answering it, doing no injustice to any one, the democratic party will lift the burdens off of labor; give it full opportunity in life's struggle and restore the individual to his true position in our social system.

In this work it will bring the United States to the beginning of that day in which it will take the lead in the world's great march of human liberty, and no longer lag behind to delay its advance to the ultimate achievement of human destiny.

It will not be expected, nor would it be proper now to point out in detail the methods by which these results shall be brought about. I will indicate in general terms what I think will probably be done. Principally the McKinley bill will be modified to get rid of its most objectionable features. The general tendency of this modification will be found in the bill which passed the present house at its late session. All raw materials will be put upon the free list. By raw materials are meant those which have passed through human labor, one or two steps beyond the condition of nature. This will include coal, wood, jute, hemp, tin, pig iron, lead ores, iron ores, copper ores, and all products of nature necessary in manufacturing. This, of course, will cheapen manufacturing, and the duties on the finished products should be lowered to the extent that the process of manufacturing has been thereby cheapened. It will not do to leave to the manufacturers themselves the cheapening of the product after they have been given cheap material, because protection after it gave them the profit of that system, left it to say how much of it should be given to the laborer, and they gave him nothing. (Applause).

Again, all bounties authorized by the law should be shipped. No greater outrage is there than the taking out of the public treasury, taxes paid by all to help the business of the few. Why should the sugar growers receive a gift from the treasury of ten or fifteen millions of dollars a year, and the wheat growers and cotton growers, or the makers of boots and shoes or blacksmith receive nothing? And if necessary for the purpose of revenue, the duty on sugar should be restored.

Many more changes might be suggested, but these will be sufficient to begin with, and to commit the United States to the policy of tariff reform and commercial liberty. With them the people of this country will realize the benefits from a partial removal of the restrictions on trade and will soon be eager for the further change which a true economic policy will demand.

With what satisfaction and joy should all who learned the science of political economy regard the triumph just achieved, which places the democratic party in control of the government?

May I be pardoned for an expression of my own personal gratification at the result. Before the foundation of this Memorial building was laid, when many here to-night who cast their first votes the other day were children, I proclaimed in nearly every hall in this city, and every school-house in this district, the doctrine which was vindicated the other day. (Great applause). In season and out of season, by night and by day, through ridicule, misrepresentation and abuse; in defeat and disaster, I lifted up as best I could, the banner which now has been carried to the fore-front of victory. (Applause). I have the reward of the pioneer who sees forests felled, and farms cultivated, and cities built up, where he first saw nothing but a dark and apparently impenetrable wilderness. On election night as the telegrams came crowding in, announcing the overwhelming victory, I could not but think that my feelings were akin to those of him who saw the infant Redeemer brought into the temple, and who exclaimed: "Now my eyes have seen the glory of the Lord." (Renewed applause). Nor can I forget that in those early days of the struggle one of the sturdy maintainers of the faith was he whom you have elected to represent you in congress. (Great cheering). May he go there as bravely to carry on the great work, which he so bravely assisted to begin, and may the brilliancy of his future justify the most hopeful anticipations of his friends. (Tremendous applause.).

But my personal joy is merged and swallowed up in the greater joy at the November election, which the new policy has in store for the American people. No nation ever grew rich and prosperous through domestic trade alone. You may encourage production by law, and so long as your own people alone buy the product, you have simply changed the money from one citizen to another. If you give the iron master larger prices for his product and the American is the purchaser, what have you done but to take from one American to give to another? Now, how can this add to the wealth of the nation? You will have no more money in the coun-

A Local Example of the Result of Skillful Work.

Suffered for Ten Years---Unable to Obtain Relief From Other Physicians---Catarrh With Nervousness, Hysteria, Etc.----Gained 15 Pounds in One Month.

Do you know Mrs. Charles Rainville, of Auburndale?

She is so enthusiastic over her cure by Drs. Byers and Dougan that she would like to talk to you about it. This is what she says for publication:

"I have been a sufferer for ten years from catarrh. My nose was stopped up, I was hawking and spitting all the time, was sleepless and restless, woke up tired and with a dull pain in the back, was dull and languid all the time, seemed to be devoid of all energy or life, and once lay as if dead for three days.

"I was extremely nervous, my ideas were confused, there were ringing and roaring noises in the ears and head, my appetite was poor, food would not digest, I continually belched up sour gas from the stomach, a feeling of oppression after eating, heartburn, head giddy and fainting spells, was dejected and experienced an all-gone feeling all the time.

Mrs. Charles Rainville, Auburndale.

"My head ached constantly. I had shooting pains all through the body. My throat was sore and tender and my tongue coated. I had violent palpitations of the heart, nervousness and hysterical fits.

"Now I am glad and proud to let the world know what has been done for me by Drs. Byers and Dougan when I was desperate and hopeless as to my case after all other physicians had failed. I saw their advertisement in the paper, and being impressed by its candor and frankness, went to them. I got relief at the start, and began to improve right along. Now I feel a thousand times better. The headaches and pains have disappeared. In fact, all the symptoms I complained of have gone. I feel as if a great weight had been lifted from me, and as if new life, health, strength and energy had been entrusted into me. For eleven years I have done nothing but stuff medicine down my throat, but none ever affected me beneficially until Drs. Byers and Dougan prescribed for me. My stomach is all right; I retain my food; the fullness and distension have ceased, my heart feels all right, and I am entirely devoid of nervousness. Bad days with me now are rare. My folks say I look like another woman. I have increased over fifteen pounds since I began treatment with these physicians. If anyone is looking for a doctor to do them good they ought to go to Drs. Byers and Dougan."

EXPLANATORY.

Recently, Drs. Byers and Dougan treated a large number of patients free of cost. This was done for the purpose of demonstrating to all who cared to test them what they could do. A great many doctors advertise, but very few of them carry out the letter of their promise. It is one thing to advertise and another to cure. Drs. Byers and Dougan do not guarantee a cure, but they promise to cure every case that is curable. Each physician has had a wide experience in the treatment of chronic diseases. Each is a competent, skilled, able man. They refer to testimonials given by grateful patients to show what they can do, and they are anxious to undertake to treat those who have failed to obtain relief from other physicians.

The free treatment period has expired. Henceforward the price for medical treatment at the hands of these physicians will be $5 a month for all diseases. Medicines are furnished free. Remember, therefore, that you can get the best medical service at the least cost from Drs. Byers and Dougan for any disease whatever, at Five Dollars a Month.

FOR ANY DISEASE.

Their Credentials

Drs. Byers & Dougan ask that their credentials and claims be thoroughly examined and investigated. Dr. Byers is a graduate of the Jefferson Medical College of Philadelphia, Pa., 1872, and has had 20 years active experience in diseases of the eye, ear, nose, throat and lungs. Dr. Dougan is a graduate of the Buffalo Medical College, and also of McGill University of Montreal, Canada, and holds both Canadian and United States qualifications. Dr. Dougan has had 25 years experience in treating chronic diseases of the lungs, stomach, heart, liver, kidneys, bladder, rectum, diseases of women, etc., etc.

The Republican Campaign Arguments

Are Shown in Their True Light at St. Louis.

Neidringhaus Would Quit the Business

If Grover Cleveland Was Elected President.

He Fails to Do Anything of the Kind But Instead Invests a Million Dollars.

St. Louis, Nov. 21.—Prior to the election, work on the suburb to St. Louis, which is being laid out by ex-Congressman Neidringhaus, was to some extent suspended, and it was reported that in the event of the democratic ticket being elected the project would be abandoned, as it would no longer be profitable to manufacture tinplate in view of the almost certain reduction or abolition of the tariff.

The ex-congressman now, however, states that the election of Cleveland will in no way affect his plans, and work has been actively resumed.

Upwards of $1,500,000 is to be invested, and tinplate and granite ware will be manufactured in immense quantities.

Much satisfaction has been expressed at the ex-congressman's decision, and interest is generally revived in the future of the suburb, which is about to be christened the Granite City.

A HOT FIGHT.

Greggains and Costello Are to Meet.

Much Interest Centers in This Battle and Much Depends Upon It.

New York, Nov. 21.—Extra interest attaches to the Costello-Greggains finish fight to-night at the Coney Island Athletic club owing to the probability that the victor may be pitted against the winner of the Hall-Fitzsimmons fight. The audience will be as big as that which witnessed the recent Choynski-Goudfrey mill. Costello's brilliant record in the fistic ring and especially his draws with Frank Slavin, who was recently defeated in the Pelican club in London, has tended to bring him into considerable prominence. Greggains, however, is the favorite in the betting, as the result of his defeat of La Blanche, the marine, the conqueror of Jack Dempsey, and authorities on the ring are backing him heavily. A large number of western and southern sports have been attracted to this city by the encounter.

Billiard Tourney.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—The national short top billiard tournament projected by Champion Frank Ives opened this afternoon at the Imperial hall. Among the participants were Frank Mozzioli of St. Louis, and Thomas Gallagher of Chicago, who will be the scratch men and play 300 points; Capt. A. C. Anson, the veteran base ball manager; Joseph W. Capron of Ontario, and H. C. (Spike) Hoskins, of New York. The tourney will continue for several days.

THE AMERICAN DUCHESS.

She Will Not Lose by the Duke's Death.

The Stories Put in Circulation Have Been for the Purpose of Sensation.

New York, Nov. 21.—Private advices received in this city by friends of the Duchess of Marlborough, formerly Mrs. Hammersley, contain information calculated to deny the report that the duchess is likely to suffer in a financial sense as a result of the sudden death of her husband, following close upon the enormous drain upon her private fortune for the restoration of Blenheim palace.

According to this information received here the insurance policies upon the life of the late duke, and which are all made out in her name, aggregate nearly a million of dollars, while in addition all the furniture, paintings and bric-a-brac which she has purchased for the palace during the past two years are her personal property, the bills having been made out in her name, and there will be no objection to her removing this property, the value of which, in the aggregate, is nearly a hundred thousand dollars, to her London residence.

The duchess has in addition a heavy life interest in the estate of her first husband, and altogether her circumstances are said to be even better than they were prior to her becoming a duchess.

TO DUMP M'KINLEY.

He Was Too Much of a Load to Carry.

Republicans Will Put Him on the Shelf.

They Will Go Into the Fight in 1896 on a Democratic Platform.

New York, Nov. 21.—The World this morning prints an interview with Chauncey M. Depew, in which he outlines what he believes will be the future policy of the republican party.

He says there will be no reconstruction and it will continue to be the party of progress. Reverses will simply stimulate its energies to renewed efforts and renewed triumphs. The first plank in the republican platform for 1896, Mr. Depew declares, will be a protective tariff. It will not be the McKinley bill, but the protective policy will be adhered to.

The policy of the party on immigration, Mr. Depew further declares, will be to place additional restriction about it, but the force bill issue will be put aside.

Mr. Depew added that there were no new leaders in sight and that Mr. Harrison would fill the place left vacant by Mr. Cleveland's promotion to the presidency and greatly enlarge it. He will be for the next four years the one private citizen whose very appearance will command the attention of the whole country.

A PRICE ON HIS HEAD.

Three Thousand Dollars for the Kid.

Every Evidence That a Highly Sensational Shooting Match Will Occur.

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 21.—Gov. Martin yesterday offered a reward of $6,000 for the capture of "Kid," the notorious Apache cattle rustler, alive or dead, and $300 each is offered for the capture of his companions.

The depredations committed by this daring outlaw have made his name a terror to every white man in the territory.

It is well known that he will never be taken alive and he will sell his life dearly if an attempt is made to capture him. A number of old Indian hunters, allured by the princely price set upon the desperado's head, have gone on his trail.

They are unhampered by military restraint, are familiar with his haunts and they expect to kill him in a few days and claim the reward.

HAWAIIAN ISLANDS.

Will Uncle Sam Take Them Under His Wing?

Most of the Government Officials in Favor of Annexation.

San Francisco, Nov. 21.—The Examiner to-day publishes a three-page article on the subject of the annexation of the Hawaiian islands by the United States. The article says it has been understood that the state department has for some time been considering the question of annexation. T. F. Williams was sent to Honolulu by the Examiner and spent five weeks there investigationg the subject. Out of 42 members of the Hawaiian parliament he obtained signed articles on the subject from 41. Ten of these regard annexation as possible and desirable in case the Hawaiian government is disrupted. The 31 who are opposed to annexation are natives who are in favor of the autonomy of the Hawaiian kingdom.

CUT HIM TO DEATH.

A Bloody Fight Over a Game of Cards.

A Bad Man With a Razor Stirs Up the Quiet Inhabitants.

Washington, Ind., Nov. 21.—This city is in a fever of excitement over an early Sunday morning murder and the open talk of lynching.

About 8 o'clock Henry Stewart, Ed. Harmon and another colored man were at Councilman Dant's saloon playing cinch for the drinks.

A dispute arose as to whose deal it was and the lie was passed.

Stewart jumped to his feet and seized a razor. Harmon then knocked him down with a chair. But Stewart seemed bent on a fight and he was knocked down four times in succession.

Harmon then tried to escape, but Stewart arose to his feet and rushing at Harmon struck a blow that almost severed Harmon's right arm at the shoulder. An artery was cut in two and the man bled to death in three minutes.

Stewart is in hiding and the police and several deputized officers are on a search. There is strong talk of a lynching should the fellow be caught. Stewart and Harmon are both colored barbers.

MILAN NOTES.

Milan, O., Nov. 21.—The funeral of Mr. Philo Comstock, an old resident of this place, took place from his late residence on Church street.

The Milan lecture course opened on Thursday evening with a grand concert by the Odeon club.

Milan has a colored resident who is over a hundred years old and who is able to do a day's work in the field.

Miss Anna Menchim, of Saratoga, N. Y., is visiting relatives in Milan.

KILLED FOR A DOG.

Plattsburg, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Constable Louis Lappan, of Altona, Clinton county, killed Frank Nappen by hitting him on the head with a stone.

Nappen was driving cows past Lappan's home when the latter's dog attacked him. He picked up a stone and hit the dog. Then Lappen rushed out, and threw a stone, hitting Nappen on the head and producing a wound from which he died in a few hours. Lappan is in jail.

THIS IS TOUGH.

London, Nov. 21.—Thirty Scandinavians and British emigrants who had taken passage for America by the steerage, were prevented from embarking on the Umbria at Liverpool, owing to the American quarantine regulations. They were a cleanly and healthy looking crowd and the Liverpool dock officials declared that they were superior in physique to most of the Americans who visited Europe, and at least their equals in education and morality.

IT TOOK TWO WEEKS,

But He Got There After a While.

Powderly Tells the People Why the Election Went as It Did.

St. Louis, Nov. 21.—General Master Workman Powderly gave out an interview last night on the subject of the Homestead troubles and the recent election. It is the first expression he has made for publication. He spoke at length. What he said occupies a column in the morning papers.

He connects the landslide on the 8th with Carnegieism pure and simple. He says the people do not dislike Harrison, nor do they especially love Cleveland, but that they saw the trend of events as exemplified at Homestead and thought the quickest way to arrest them was to destroy the party in power.

The Homestead troubles, Mr. Powderly says, were the results of obstinacy and a desire to rule without question. Frick is a natural tyrant. In reply to the question: "What do you think of the labor situation in the country to-day?" Mr. Powderly said:

"It never was better. The fact that hundreds of thousands of republicans voted for Cleveland against Harrison proves that."

MONEY FOR SALE.

Congress at its last session, voted an appropriation for the world's fair. It directed that the appropriation should be paid in money made especially for this purpose, and should be composed of five millions of silver half dollars, to be coined at the mint, with a special design that should commemorate the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus. The world's fair authorities are now about to receive these coins from the United States mint, which are offered for sale to the people at the uniform price of $1 each. The advance demand has been great. Nearly one thousand banks have sent in orders for from fifty to five thousand coins each at $1 a piece.

When this lot of souvenir coins is issued, there will be no more made, and millions who expect to get them will be disappointed. The world's fair authorities therefore make public announcement of these facts, and urge the people everywhere to subscribe immediately for these coins. All banks are authorized to receive subscriptions and deposits. Persons who cannot conveniently subscribe in this way may remit direct to the treasurer of the World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago, sending $1 for each coin desired, with instructions how they shall be shipped.

All the money received from the sale of these coins is devoted to World's Columbian Exposition purposes. Subscribers to these coins will not only be helping the great world's fair, but will also secure national heirlooms that must grow in historic and intrinsic value as the years pass by.

ONE RESULT OF THE ELECTION.

We congratulate Printers' Ink, "the little schoolmaster in the art of advertising," upon its prospect of deliverance from the persecutions of the postoffice department. The rules of this department permit the most amazing decisions to be made, setting at naught both justice and plain common sense; and once made it is about as hard to change them as it was of yore to change a Median—Persian decree. Postmaster-General Wanamaker, whom we believe to be a well-meaning sort of man, in the main, has developed a surprising obstinacy, which makes a decision on his part as much to be dreaded as an ukase by the Czar of all the Russias. There were certain complicated questions regarding the use which Printers' Ink was making of the mails, mainly in the matter of sample copies that brought the paper into collision with the department. Thereupon the postoffice authorities, on the most flimsy grounds, decided it to be merely a circular, and denied it transmission through the mails at second-class rates. As Geo. P. Rowell & Co., the publishers, were able to show very promptly that they were entirely within their rights under the law, and that instead of being a mere circular, Printers' Ink is one of the most unique and highly prized little papers in the country, it was clearly Mr. Wanamaker's duty to see justice done. But once led into error by the blunder of a subordinate, he has shown an utter and unaccountable unwillingness to retract. The expense to Printers' Ink is said to be $20 000, which ought to be refunded by act of congress if there is no other way of getting it. Meanwhile Mr. Wanamaker's inconsistencies and obstinacies are mercilessly held up to ridicule.—Marblehead (Mass.) Messenger.

WANT MORE.

Lowell, Mass., Nov. 21.—The cotton spinners last night voted not to accept the 7 per cent. raise of wages in the mills and to demand 10 per cent. They claim that the first named advance will not give them as much as Fall River and New Bedford operatives had before.

PLOT TO DESTROY.

Much Excitement Created in Santiago.

New York, Nov. 21.—A special to the Herald from Valparaiso says: An elaborate plot was discovered last last night to burn down many prominent houses in Santiago, sack the moneda, seize Capt. Goni and a number of other naval officers and if possible to inaugurate a revolutionary movement.

The plot originated apparently in the several regiments of the line, many officers of which were known to be in sympathy with Balmaceda's followers. As soon as the plot was discovered the ringleaders were put under arrest.

Carvalho Oyega, who was commanding the fifth division under Balmaceda, who has been in jail for the past three months, was hurriedly taken from jail and put aboard a train and brought to Valparaiso, where he was placed in safe keeping aboard the corvette Abtao. A number of other prominent Balmacedists will be placed under arrest at once.

The grenadiers and the first artillery which are stationed at Santiago, are thoroughly loyal, and while the discovery of the plot has been kept as secret as possible by the government, there is no reason to fear any further trouble.

WILL USE OIL.

Findlay, O., Nov. 21.—(Special)—The Findlay Pressed Brick company; the Findlay Bottle company, and several other leading manufacturers are arranging to use Lima crude oil for fuel, owing to the failure of the gas supply.

LIKE DEATH GRIP,

Republicans Will Hold on to Their Offices.

Egan Will Arrive in Chile in Just About Time to Start Home.

New York, Nov. 21.—Several of Harrison's appointees to foreign powers are now in this country on leaves of absence.

Among them are Hon. Robt. T. Lincoln, minister to England; Patrick Egan, minister to Chile; and John S. Durham, minister to Hayti. Mr. Lincoln, who is now in Chicago, has not made up his mind whether or not, in view of the fact that there will be a change of administration in Washington, it would be worth while for him to return to his post.

There are, however, several matters which should receive his personal attention, and the probabilities are, therefore, that he will again cross the water and preside over the American legation until Mr. Cleveland begins to wield his axe in the diplomatic service.

Despite the distance between this country and Chile, and its long and not altogether pleasant voyage, Minister Egan proposes to return to Santiago, sailing from New York two weeks hence, and will remain at his post until recalled, when he will again take up his residence in Lincoln, Neb.

Minister Durham, who has only been in this country a week, is in doubt whether or not to return. The mission to Turkey, which is vacant by reason of the resignation of Mr. Hirsch, is to be filled by the present administration. It has been offered to D. P. Thompson, of Portland, Ore., and his acceptance is expected today at the state department.

NAPOLEON.

How the Henry County Dems Did Whoop It Up.

Napoleon, O., Nov. 21.—(Special)—Boom! Fizz! Crack! Bang! Whoopee! was the order of affairs at this city all day Saturday and late into the night. A goodly portion of Henry county's democracy was in the city to show their appreciation of Cleveland's return to power. And they spoke in no uncertain language their joy and gratification.

At an early hour the town was crowded and by afternoon the principal streets were dense with humanity, each one eager to do his share in making the jollification a success.

The city was beautifully decorated with flags, bunting and banners. An elegant banner bearing the inscription "Cleveland & Stevenson" made from netting and also bearing the large portraits in oil of our leaders, spanned Perry street and could be easily distinguished for a mile north and south. It was noticeable that business blocks regardless of the political complexion of their owners decorated profusely.

Delegations from the various townships arrived in town at different times with colors flying and each in turn was tendered an ovation.

The parade took place at 4 p. m., and was a masterpiece. Among other features were bands, civic organizations, a thousand tin horns, comic characters on foot and horseback.

The procession was not without banners inscribed thereon terse points touching on the campaign which added materially to the general "rub-in" on the reps, who viewed the hilarity with eyes over which has formed a cataract of jealousy.

In the evening a grand parade and pyrotechnic display was the order, the latter continuing until late at night.

The whole program was a love feast that will long remain food for pleasing thought to witnesses and participants.

A NEW PARTY.

The Industrial Legion of the United States.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 21.—An organization styled "The Industrial Legion of the United States" has been formed by prominent leaders of the people's party, who are also prominent in the farmers' alliance, the object of which is to carry out politically the measures embodied in the declaration of principles of the Omaha platform of the people's party, together with free speech, a free ballot and a fair count.

The industrial league is to consist of three classes, the first to consist of male members over 21 years of age—intended to group together as voters—and will be regarded as the senior class. The second will be the junior class, which will consist of male members under 21 and over 14 years of age, who shall be educated and trained to become voters of the people's party, and the third class shall be known as the woman's aid corps, which is intended as an auxiliary to the senior legion.

The Legion is modeled much after the Grand Army, and partakes of a secret organization in character, while the meetings may be secret or open, at the option of the members.

The founders of the Legion are prominent leaders of the seven great industrial organizations, composing the people's party, together with the foremost people's party leaders.

Among the charter members are Hon. H. E. Taubeneck, of Illinois, chairman of the national executive committee of the people's party; George F. Washburn, chairman of the eastern division of the people's party, Boston, Mass.; Congressman C. Otis, of Kansas; J. W. Willis, of Farmers' alliance; President H. L. Loucks, of South Dakota, of the Farmers' alliance; L. T. Taylor, of Tennessee, secretary of the Farmers' alliance; J. H. Turner, H. Marion Butler, vice president Farmers' alliance of North Carolina; W. F. Martin, St. Louis, secretary Reform Press association; S. McClellan, Topeka, Kan., president Reform Press association and editor of the Topeka Advocate; Hon. Frank Burkitt, of Mississippi; Hon. L. P. Featherston, of Arkansas; Alonzo Wardell, superintendent Ad Degree of the Farmers' alliance; I. E. Dean, of New York, state organizer Farmers' alliance; Paul Vandervoort, of Nebraska, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R.

The organization of the industrial league of the United States was perfected by the election of the following officers: Paul Vandervoort, commander-in-chief; J. H. Turner, adjutant general; G. F. Washburn, of Massachusetts, quartermaster general; Congressman T. F. Watson, national recruiting officer; J. F. Willits, of Kansas, national recruiting officer of the western division; W. S. Morgan, national sentinel; executive council, Hon. H. E. Taubeneck, of Illinois; Hon. Marion Cannon, congressman-elect, of California; Hon. Marion Butler, Hon. J. H. Davis, of Texas; I. E. Dean, of New York; J. H. Willits, of Kansas. These, together with the four highest officers, will consitute the council.

Of the officers of the woman's aid corps two were elected by this body as provisional officers to organize that department—being Mrs. Anna D. Diggs, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Marion Todd, of Michigan.

AN ACROSTIC.

Come democrats we will be content;
Let harmony with us prevail,
Enjoying the great bombardment,
Vice versa the kite's with the tail.

Enlivened with facts and by figures,
Look over this land and applaud.
Another such a good "warping"
No party has ever enjoyed.

Did you but stop and think for a moment,
And reason a moment, I know,
No party on earth could have won it,
Defending the workingman so.

Since the grand old party was winner,
To hold it was all their desire.
Each year they have forced in some measure
Verbatim as the heelers require.

Engendered with tariff taxation,
No party has labored so hard;
So terrible was the great burden,
Our Grover just sent in his card,

Notifying Benjamin Harrison:
Be ready, old boy, to retire;
You will also notify Whitelaw
His presence we do not require.

Adlai's state did outdo them,
For the farmer came out in his might,
Refusing high tariff taxation.
Indiana went clear out of sight.

Sure the people have spoken with ballots
To the democrats coming in power,
Out with the old party heelers
Ere the demmies have power one hour.

Advice to Mothers of Fretful Babies

828 Huron St., Toledo, O., July 17, '92.
Hand Medicine Co., Gentlemen:

My baby is now three months old and has had colic all her life. We gave her all kinds of remedies without any beneficial effect. I was almost discouraged in trying anything else when a friend told me of your Dr. Hand's Colic Cure. I gave her 12 drops which acted like a charm. Now as soon as I discover she has wind colic I give her one or two doses which relieves her entirely. I want to advise all mothers who have fretful babies to use Dr. Hand's Colic Cure. I will hereafter always keep it in the house.

On November 21st, 1788, North Carolina ratified the new constitution.

Delaware ratified first on December 7, 1787, and the fate of the constitution, which was a compromise between conflicting opinions, and so not wholly satisfactory to anyone, hung in the balance until the following June, when the ratification of the requisite nine states was obtained, and the American Union became an assured fact.

POLITICAL EQUALITY CLUB.

Interesting Paper on the Constitutional History of Ohio.

Despite the snow storm Saturday afternoon a goodly number of the members of the Political Equality club, were in attendance at the semi-monthly meeting.

The program consisted of a very able paper on the constitutional history of Ohio, read by the president of the club, followed by a discussion.

The next lecture in the course being given under the club's auspices, occurs on the evening of November 30.

The committee on decorations, which did such tasteful decorating for the first lecture, was reappointed.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Saturday afternoon, December 3, at the residence of Mrs. Emma Harley, 1804 Adams street.

The paper on Ohio's constitutional history will be read by Miss Calkins.

It was also decided to have a parliamentary drill, and a committee of four, consisting of Mesdames Murphy, Harley and Eisenhart, and Miss Calkins, was appointed to prepare a program.

The meeting was very interesting, and judging from the first paper the study of Ohio will prove both pleasant and profitable.

ANOTHER DIVORCE SUIT.

The Enright Case Figures—Claims and Counter-Claims.

In common pleas court to-day Michael Enright applied for a divorce from his wife, Margaret Enright, charging unfaithfulness.

Mrs. Enright files an answer in which she denies all of the allegations in her husband's petition, setting up that he is of an extremely jealous disposition. She claims that she has at all times been a good and faithful wife to him.

In the year 1887, Michael Enright was granted a divorce from the defendant. They were afterwards married.

About two years ago, Enright met Mrs. Murphy in company with a gentleman walking on Orange street, and he drew a revolver and shot both parties. After a long sick spell, Mrs. Enright recovered and the two became reconciled once more, resulting in the withdrawal of a second petition for divorce which had been filed by Mr. Enright.

Mrs. Murphy, in her answer, prays that her husband may be enjoined from disposing of his property.

A COLD WAVE.

Get Perishable Produce Under Cover—Unusual Phenomenom.

Weather Observer Hanner said this morning:

"The entire eastern half of the country will feel the effects of the cold wave by to-morrow morning, and falls of temperature, 15 to 25 degrees, will be rapid. The temperature here will probably reach 15 degrees, or lower.

"The cold snap makes some of the produce men wake up, especially those who have their stuff in freight cars. A temperature of 15 degrees will affect almost anything in that line if they don't get it under cover. The lowest temperature this morning was 31 degrees.

"A thing happened here this morning that very seldom occurs. The maximum temperature for the 24 hours ending this morning at 8 o'clock occurred at 2 o'clock in the morning. It was 40. The highest yesterday was 36. The usual time for the maximum is sometime between 2 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon. This phenomenon was due to the passage of that storm. As soon as the storm passed and the wind got to the west again the temperature fell immediately."

HER NAME.

"I'm losted! Could you find me, please?"
Poor little frightened baby!
The wind had tossed her golden fleece,
The stone had scratched her dimpled knees
I stooped and lifted her with ease,
And softly whispered, "May be."

"Tell me your name my little maid,
I can't find you without it."
"My name is Shiney-eyes," she said.
"Yes, but your last?" She shook her head.
"Up to my house 'ey never said
A single fing about it."

"But, dear," I said, "what is your name?"
"Why, didn't you hear me tell you?
Dust Shiney-eyes." A bright thought came;
Yes, when you're good; but when they blame
You, little one—it's just the same
When mamma has to scold you?"

"My mamma neber scolds," she moans,
A little blushing ensuing.
"'Cept when I've been a frowing stones,
And then she says" (the culprit owns),
"Mehetable Sapphira Jones,
What has you been a doing?"
—Anna F. Burnham.

DONER ON TRIAL.

He Concludes to Contest the State for Acquittal.

The Case Continued Until This Afternoon—Special Venire Issued to Procure a Jury.

Councilman George M. Doner, indicted with six other members of the council in common pleas court, on the charge of bribery, will contest the case.

The trial was set for 9 o'clock this morning, but on request of Byron Ritchie, counsel for Mr. Doner, the hearing was continued until 2 o'clock this afternoon. At that hour Mr. Doner appeared, accompanied by his mother and brother, at which time the counsel announced the defense was ready to proceed with the trial.

As no precipe for a special jury had been filed by either side, it was left to try the case to regular jurors. As the Manchester jury exhausted the list of names who were qualified to try the case, a special venire or two will be necessary, so it is very probable that some difficulty will be experienced in securing a jury.

The clerk called the following regular jurors:

H. F. Van Fleet, Fred Vandeburg, J. W. Potts, H. C. Nichols, Andrew Nesbit, W. H. Hook, G. W. Hathaway, H. C. Bay, C. R. Bowen.

A number of these, it will be seen, were on the Manchester jury, and were of course disqualified.

The court then ordered that 12 jurors be drawn from the box. It will take a day to serve these summons, and it is probable that the case will now continue until Wednesday.

A DOCTOR'S ADVICE.

Things Which Belong to the Body Coverings for the Night.

The hours of repose are among the essentials of the many matters of routine which conumbrue in varying measure towards existence. With these hours go the clothing for the night.

Many ideas are prevalent in regard to what should be worn at the time when one ordinarily prepares for that repose which is to give energy for the following day. One person has an opinion that a certain form of nightrobe and a bed-covering of particular construction or character are the proper things for health and for comfort. Ordinarily these convictions of thought are not worth a serious consideration. A little common sense goes a great way and carries with it nearly everything that suggests a proper habiliment for the hours of sleeping.

In the first place there is the body garment proper, and this is, from a purely sanitary standpoint, best exemplified in the pajamas. Pajamas cover both body and limbs and furnish all necessary warmth and comfort. They are loose fitting and thoroughly comfortable and so very easily adjusted that anyone can put them on the body with that facility with which an ordinary night shirt is placed. Women who may be averse to adopting clothes which may outwardly appear manlike may find in health a good well worth contesting, and in covering themselves with that style of garment which is thoroughly sensible.

The composition of the nightgown is a matter of taste. Cannon flannel, linen and woolen goods stand at the head of the list; after these come the silks. One, however, which deserves special attention and which is equally suited for both sexes is the real China silk. This last is the best, but cannot be procured at prices within ordinary range of purse. If it can be bought it will give not only a necessary protection, but a comfortable and an enduring garment.

The matter of bed clothing is another thing deserving of thought, comprising that same relation to the body which the outer clothing should hold. A few simple rules should cover the entire ground and they are comprised in four homely precepts:

1. Use a hair or husk mattress.
2. Cover this mattress with a blanket.
3. Cover the blanket with a sheet.
4. Put a sheet, blankets and counterpane, or extras if you like, above this, and always bear in mind that a lowering of the body's temperature at night is not to be sanctioned.

SQUEEZED BY A BIG BOA.

A Champion Quail Eater Who Thought His Time Had Come.

A 16-foot boa constrictor gave a private exhibition of his entertaining powers in the Palace Museum yesterday. The performance wasn't on the bills and the visitors who were looking through the curio halls and menagerie said that it was really too realistic to draw full houses on subsequent occasions.

About eight weeks ago Captain Rogers of the steamship Liberia brought over from Africa 80 odd monkeys, a chimpanzee and a big snake. The reptile, a gaudy green and black creature, was bought by Huber and placed on exhibition in his Fourteenth street museum.

The serpent was kept well fed, as is usual with such animals when exhibited. A pair of pigeons had been given to the constrictor, when he bolted them, as these snakes do, swallowing them whole. Lately it has shown signs of viciousness, which portend, so the experts say, a coming distemper. A pan of water was placed in the slimy creature's cage, a big wire and glass house on the second floor. It was thought that the constrictor would take to the water and so avert the threatened illness.

But Mr. Snake had no intention of taking a bath. A consultation was had, and it was decided that a compulsory dip would be necessary. So at 12 o'clock yesterday E. G. Johnson, the superintendent of the menagerie, stepped into the cage. The snake was coiled in one corner watching Johnson with its cold, beady eyes, and slowly moving the tip of its tail backward and forward. A large tub of fresh, lukewarm water was placed in the cage and Johnson who was in his shirt sleeves, prepared to dip the reptile.

He grasped the reptile by the neck with one hand, and reached for a point further down his body with the other. But he was too late. The snake began to squirm and twist, and Johnson found himself unable to control his heavy charge.

His snakeship twisted himself about Johnson's neck and then gripped his right arm and encircled his ribs just over the heart. He made an effort to squeze Johnson, but with the free arm the latter managed to disentangle the lower part of the serpent's body. "Prof." O'Reily, a tattooed man, and two other attaches of the house heard Johnson's half-smothered calls for aid. They rushed to his assistance, and the visitors throughout the building made a stampede for the front of the cage.

The great snake was finally unwound from Johnson's body. The superintendent was black in the face and had to be supported when he stepped out from the cage. A physician was called and an examination of Johnson was made. It was found that one of his ribs had been pushed in and that he had been injured slightly internally. After a time Johnson recovered and the rib was found to be unbroken. The body was inflamed, as was also the neck, and the superintendent will have to take a few days' vacation in bed.

Johnson has become quite well known among sporting men as an eater of quail on wagers, and is now the champion of New York in this particular gastronomic sport. He says he prefers eating quail to close quarters with a boa constrictor, and congratulates himself on his lucky escape. He is a [illegible] 28 years old and thinks his powerfully built frame saved his life.

The spectators were horror stricken at the dramatic scene, and one of them, a woman, fainted. After this the snake will be fed with a pitchfork, and the management thinks he will take baths only when he pleases.—New York Morning Advertiser.

Home office in New Bee Building, 326 St. Clair street; New York Office, room 206, Potter Building, opposite postoffice.

Indications at present are that an extra session of congress will be held.

"A Peck of trouble" is what the republicans now say of the labor commissioner of New York.

Toledo and the Ninth district rejoiced in the best possible manner. There was enthusiasm and to spare.

Next Thursday will be the greatest Thanksgiving this country has had since that after Appomatox.

Wood county was well represented Saturday night, and furnished excellent oratorical timber. Come again.

The editor of the Blade feelingly remarks that "the Ohio sheep is already shivering in the blast." Pauvre montou!

Arrange to make some one happy on Thanksgiving day. Gen. Slevin, the Ys and the churches will gladly distribute contributions.

Never mind agitating a tariff commission now. The people have selected the democratic party to revise the tariff and it will be done in the proper manner.

Mrs. Lease and Whiskers Peffer as senators from bleeding Kansas would be a sight calculated to show the possibilities of this great country of ours, if nothing else.

Michigan republicans have a scrimmage on hand. Uncle Cyrus Luce has concluded to contest the re-election of Senator Stockbridge, and there is promise of warm times.

Congressman-elect Ritchie declares against free silver legislation. He is thus in line with the great majority of his constituents, especially the democratic portion.

Will an effort be made for a representation of Toledo's democracy in the inaugural parade? This is a little matter which may claim Col. J. M. Hall's attention for a few moments.

Portsmouth, Ohio, mourns the death of William Quincy Adams, one of its most enterprising citizens—one whose life was closely allied with the best interests and progress of the town.

Mr. M. M. Eppstein sounded a square keynote when he referred to the necessity of organization if future victories would be won. This is the road to success; will the local democracy walk in it?

Vice President-elect Stevenson is receiving as great ovations in the west and south as is his distinguished running mate, Mr. Cleveland, in the east. Cleve and Steve are a pretty good pair to tie to.

The sullen, loud, despairing cry that breaks upon and dissipates in the free American air is the united wail of republican office holders who mourn over their coming severance from the fleshpots.

Kansas City is in the midst of a revival of religion, and services have even been held on the produce exchange. Next to Chicago and Cincinnati, probably no city in the west needs a shaking up for the better as does Kansas City.

President Harrison is making a great many appointments for a man who has declared that he would not attempt to embarrass his successor. Present selections will be of short duration, except as to the judicial nominees who hold life berths.

There is no information at hand which signifies that a concerted movement is in progress among republican office holders to send in their resignations March 4. Most of them would as soon serve under President Cleveland as Benjamin Harrison.

The Chicago Herald is leading in a movement for the opening of the world's fair on Sunday. It daily prints the heading of a petition which is designed to be rut out, signed and sent to the powers that be. If there is any winning of a point, the Herald is likely to be on deck.

Republican papers are predicting disaster to the democratic majority in congress. These are the same papers that predicted democratic defeat before the election, and have earned for themselves the reputation of false prophets. Besides, "Forewarned is forearmed."

A rain of fire is predicted for the night of the 27th of November—a meteoric shower that has never had its equal, and more to the same effect. If these celestial fireworks come off according to program, the display may be regarded as nothing more than a commemoration of the democratic victory of the 8th.

The speech of Hon. Frank H. Hurd at Memorial hall Saturday, published elsewhere in this issue, is a gem of polished English oratory. Beautiful in diction, elevated in patriotism and rich in luxuriance of language, it is something to be read and re-read and retained. The tribute paid to this eloquent Toledoan by Congressman Ritchie was heartily indorsed by all who heard it, and will be by all who read Mr. Ritchie's speech.

The annual report of the secretary of agriculture shows that more than three-quarters of the exports of the country are from the farm. Yet the policy of the government of which Secretary Rusk is a member has been to curtail the trade of the United States in a manner which hampered this export trade, which, however, refused to be confined to the protectionist "home market." He speaks of experiments in sugar culture, but makes no reference to that experiment of placing sugar on the free list, which taught the matrons and the householders of the whole country that they had for years been paying too much for this commodity through the burden of a protective tariff. "The world do move."

Time generally fixes matters all right. For instance, there is the case of W. W. Montgomery, of Port Clinton. The republican politicians of the village could not rest easy while Mr. Montgomery held the office. He gave the greatest satisfaction to the patrons and was in favor with the people, but that had no effect. His head was cut off in the middle of his term. How different is the situation now. There is a general demand that Mr. Montgomery be reinstated, and his selection will probably be among the first changes made. The ex-postmaster has the indorsement of the county committee, the mayor and village council, and a great majority of those who do business with the office. Mr. Montgomery is one of the working democrats of little Ottawa, and his appointment would undoubtedly be hailed with delight.

SATURDAY NIGHT'S JUBILEE.

The democratic rejoicing on Saturday night was an eminent success, both in the street display and in the exercises at Memorial hall. The hall was packed with a good representation of the northwestern Ohio democracy to its full capacity. The recent triumph of the people was well worthy the highest oratorical effort, and the different speakers arose to the importance of the great victory. Messrs. Hurd, Ritchie, Baldwin, and others gave a feast of good things to that great audience, that showed its appreciation in frequent applause and manifestations of approval and delight. It was a great gathering, and not a democrat present regretted the fact that he braved the elements and took part in the general rejoicing. The streets were thronged with paraders and sympathizers and excellent order and good feeling prevailed everywhere.

THE ASYLUM CLOTHING PURCHASE.

The Bee has refrained from arraigning the Toledo asylum trustees on the charge of discrimination against home institutions lest it might be considered as simply a political attack. Now that the Commercial has exposed the affair, the Bee feels it a duty to present the facts to the public.

Mr. J. N. Mockett states emphatically that the goods purchased in Chicago could have been purchased as cheaply in Toledo as anywhere else, and Mr. Mockett undoubtedly knows whereof he speaks.

The Toledo asylum is a Toledo institution. In securing it the citizens of Toledo spent much time and money, and Toledo merchants should reap whatever incidental benefits which come from the fact of its establishment here.

Governor McKinley, pronounced protectionist that he is, and believeing in protection to home industries, has a capital opportunity of putting a little of his preaching into practice in this case.

THE M'KINLEY LAW AND ITS EFFECT.

The McKinley law, was made for the manufacturing barons of the United States, ostensibly, for the protection of home industry and American labor, but in truth, to construct an insurmountable barrier between the millionaire manufacturer of the United States and competition by trade with foreign markets.

It is true the McKinley bill does protect home industry, but how? Those for whom the law was made, consolidate their interests, or in other words form that illegal combination known as a trust, shut down the factories least profitable, reduce the production to the lowest market ebb. The first blow that follows is upon the head of the workingman. The force is cut and wages squeezed. The consequence is there are agreat many idle men who are starving for want of occupation. A strike is on, employe against employer. There are enough idle workingmen as a result of the "consolidation of interests" as authorized by the McKinley law, to take the place of the strikers.

Labor economists cry "our laboring men must be protected from the pauper labor of Europe," but none know it better to-day than the workingmen of the United States, that what he needs most is protection from the pauper labor of our own country driven to starvation and even "scabbing" by the terms of the McKinley law.

Anyone making such a bet would have a sure thing, as four months from the date of Cleveland's inauguration will be the 4th of July.—Zanesville Recorder.

A Peaceful Revolution.

The election of Cleveland is a peaceful revolution and it will make no disturbance in the channels of finance, commerce, industry and trade. It will recall the government to severe honesty; to all needful economy; to the largest freedom of the citizen and to the sound democratic policy of scrupulously maintaining the greatest good to the greatest number. The considerate of all parties will rejoice that a democratic victory has called so able, upright and patriotic man as Grover Cleveland to the presidency.—Shelby County Democrat.

James E. Campbell Will Be Taken Care of

In all the cabinet slates being arranged the name of ex-Gov. James E. Campbell does not appear, but in the logical discussions of the probabilities it seems to be conceded that Mr. Campbell can have a portfolio if he desires it. There is no concealment about the fact that he of all other democrats deserves recognition. An opinion, therefore, justified by all current knowledge and reasonable assumption, is that if Mr. Campbell is not in Mr. Cleveland's cabinet it will be because he declined the honor.—Columbus Dispatch.

MR. GEYSER, SIR.

Just a Few Questions for You to Answer.

Killing Two Birds With the One Stone.

One of the Probable Reasons Why the Clothing for the Toledo Asylum Was Bought in Chicago.

Several times during the past month the Bee called attention to the fact that the Toledo insane asylum trustees were going outside the state to buy clothing.

It appears that ex-Senator Geyser is the party who is responsible. The following communication from a Summit street merchant offers a suggestion worthy of consideration:

To the Editor: I have read Superintendent Tobey's excuse for buying clothing in Chicago in this morning's Commercial, and I have also read Mr. J. N. Mockett's statement.

Would Mr. Geyser, who seems to be the gentleman responsible, or Dr. Tobey, mind informing an anxious public if it is simply a coincident that their trip to Chicago and the world's fair dedication services occurred at the same time.

Would the gentleman further inform the public how many days does it require to purchase $3,000 worth of goods.

As an American I believe in patronizing home institutions, and home industries.

MERCHANT.

From this morning's Commercial:

To ascertain the facts in the matter, a Commercial reporter yesterday called upon Superintendent Tobey at the institution.

In reply to a question, he said:

"Yes, it is true that we bought between $3,000 and $4,000 worth of clothing and other articles in Chicago. It was a purely business transaction. The number of suits of clothes purchased was about 400. If anybody had that number to buy, would he go to a manufacturer or to somebody who keeps a retail store? If anybody doubts the wisdom of the purchase made in Chicago, he is invited to come out and compare the clothing bought in Chicago and Toledo and the prices paid for the same. As far as buying in Chicago is concerned, it was not by my direction, but at the instance of the board. We feel under obligations to spend the money of the people advantageously, and we are entirely at liberty to purchase clothing or other articles, wherever the best market is found, giving Toledo, of course, the preference all things being equal."

"How did you ascertain, Doctor, that Chicago was the best market?"

"Senator Geyser, of Ironton, one of the purchasing committee, is a practical clothier, and at one of the meetings of the board, he said too much money was being paid for clothing, and suggested that he could secure just as good ones, if not better, at much lower prices. He had been doing his buying in Chicago and knew what he could do there."

"Was there any objection to buying in Toledo other than that prices were too high?"

"Yes; no store in Toledo could have supplied the sizes and varieties. Had the order been given to any clothier in Toledo, he would have had to send away to fill it. Why can't we go to the manufacturer and lay down our $3,000 or $4,000 and get rock-bottom prices as well as a retail clothier in Toledo? Our order was a big one, and the pile of clothing we have here is as large as some merchants have."

"Is this the first time clothing has been purchased without the city?"

"Yes; but from present indications it won't be the last. There is no better place than Toledo to buy boots and shoes and groceries, but we can do better in clothing elsewhere."

"Who constituted the purchasing committee?"

"Senator Geyser, F. R. Cahill and myself, and the buying was done about six weeks or two months ago. Anonymous attacks have been made on me because of this transaction, but they do not worry me in the least."

J. N. Mockett, the clothier, was communicated with last evening, when he expressed his indignation that the trustees of the asylum should cause the purchase of clothing outside of Toledo.

"I could have given an infinite better bargain in every way," he said, "so could any clothing merchant in the city. Any of us could have afforded better goods and lower prices. The clothing bought in Chicago is shoddy stuff, not comparable to the goods we could furnish at much lower prices. Even if we could have done only equally as well, the money should have been spent in Toledo. Our styles, varieties, qualities and prices will compare with those of any city, and certainly with those of the Chicago house. I do not in any way desire to criticise Dr. Tobey, as he had practically no say in the matter. There is little doubt that Senator Geyser, who runs a clothing store at Swanton, is responsible for the arrangement by which the purchase was made outside of this city. It is understood that he had for some time been dealing with the house at which the asylum purchase was made, and it is unreasonable to suppose that the proprietors of it would be slow to appreciate the influence of so valuable a customer.

RELIGIOUS DISPUTE.

Father Stech and Father Corrigan are on the Outs.

New York, Nov. 21.—The German priests of Newark, N. J., including Father Stech and the officers of the recent German congress, have prepared a two column reply to Father Corrigan, which is moderate in tone and yet discusses every point raised by him and contradicts it.

They will also publish a copy of the papal blessing, the receipt of which Father Corrigan is said to have denied. It is said that Father Corrigan will write a letter to Bishop Waggoner in which he will explain that he got a wrong impression of the German congress in Newark through misleading published statements.

POISON IN THE WELL.

Great Excitement in An Indiana Village.

College Corner, O., Nov. 21.—Wm. Crawley, aged about 35 years, of near Lotus, Ind., six miles north of this village, died yesterday. His son Morris, 8 years old, died Thursday and was buried Friday. Mrs. Crawley is improving. The peculiar circumstances in connection with the death of of the father and son, the symptoms suggesting poison, is creating much excitement in this village and at Lotus. The water in the Crawley well was found to contain a large quantity of arsenic, hence the reason for their prostration.

PRAIRIE FIRES.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 21.—A dispatch from Stewart, Holt county, says: A disastrous prairie fire originated from a spark from a chimney on a farm house near Bassett about noon yesterday, and is still raging. The head fire could be seen last night from here, fully twenty miles due south. The area of the burned district averages nearly three miles wide and fully thirty miles long.

DIED AT 28.

Newburgh, N. H., Nov. 21.—Eugene A. Brewster, jr., United States commissioner for this district, died this morning of consumption, aged about 28 years. He leaves a wife and one child.

THE NATIONAL PRESS.

Will Be Disappointed.

There is no clamor for an extra session of congress except from defeated partisans, who hope to profit by democratic blunders. Should any necessity for an extra session arise, Mr. Cleveland would have time to meet the emergency three months hence.—Buffalo Evening News.

That Extra Session.

Senator Carlisle takes no stock in the clamor for an extra session of congress. He says, very sensibly, that this is not the time to determine the question. When the new administration goes in it will consider the condition of the treasury, the needs of the country and will deliberately determine whether or not it would be justified in calling an extra session.—Atlanta Journal.

The Matter Is in Good Hands.

Speaking of an extra session, Congressman Breckinridge says: "If Mr. Cleveland favors an extra session he will call one, and vice versa." This is undoubtedly true, and the matter will be left there. Mr. Cleveland is as honest a tariff reformer as there is in the democratic party, and if the cause of tariff reform will be promoted by an extra session of congress he can be trusted to call one. It is useless for anybody else to attempt to call it.—St. Louis Republic.

A Good Suggestion.

As a compromise between the friends and opponents of an extra session of congress next March, there is a movement in Washington to have a committee of the present house, composed of members reelected to the next one, sit during the recess and prepare a tariff bill for submission either at the regular session in December or at a special session. There is much to be said of this plan. It combines reasonable expedition with a fair measure of deliberation.—Rochester Herald.

PULLED A REVOLVER

And the Would-Be Robber Got Out in a Hurry.

Singular Occurrence at the Freight Office of the Clover Leaf—Said To Be a Joke.

Police Commissioner Waring, local freight agent for the Clover Leaf, has appointed ex-Policeman Moses Powder special watchman in the Clover Leaf yards, and offices, and thereby makes a hit.

Mr. Waring tells a singular story of how a few nights ago a colored man entered the office and demanded the keys of the safe from the night clerk.

The clerk promptly pulled a revolver and the colored man lit out. Upon investigation an attempt was made to have it appear as simply a practical joke.

The young man told Mr. Waring of his experience and the result was that while it may have been a practical joke, it was not such as the company cares to have repeated, and consequently all employes party to it have been discharged.

Mr. Waring thinks there was enough in it to justify him in asking police powers for his watchman.

The Pontiac Safe.

Au Train, Mich., Nov. 21.—The steamer Pontiac, which was thought to have foundered in the gales of the last few days, is sheltered in Grand Island harbor. She made the harbor in safety Thursday night in the heavy northwest gale, and remained there since waiting for the gale to abate.

Lake Disasters.

Buffalo, Nov. 21.—The Lackawanna line steamer Newburg went ashore off Point Burrell, on the north shore of Lake Erie, in a snow storm. The steamer at once filled with water and it is feared that she will sink in the quicksand, as many other craft have heretofore done.

The Newburg has 27 carloads of flour, 100 tons of pig iron and two carloads of rags. Capt. Thomas Maytham, with the tug George, has gone to the wreck, and pumps have been ordered from Port Colborne. The Newburg is owned by the Kilderhouse syndicate and is insured for $30,000, equally divided between Smith, Davis & Co., of Buffalo, and Crosby & MacDonald, of Chicago. She is under charter to the Lackawanna line.

Steamer F. & P. M. No. 2 is ashore eight miles east of the Newburg. She has a cargo of flour and general freight from Lake Superior to Buffalo. It is thought she is in a much better place than the Newburg.

ABOUT FLIES.

One of the most aggravating things to a person of good sense is the method which people employ in dealing with flies. They are useful scavengers and if they would limit their inroads to places where they are needed they would do good service. Unfortunately, however, when they once come in force they often pervade the most cleanly homes. One of the most successful methods in dealing with flies is to hang up some herb or plant which is offensive to them and not offensive to the residents of the house.

Sweet clover, which grows plentifully by the roadside and has a faint, pleasant odor, unobjectionable to any one not afflicted with hay fever, has the reputation of being abhorred by flies. A few sprays of this plant hung in the parlor, or a cluster of the sweet, white, tassel-like heads as a bouquet on the center table, will do more work in ridding the room of flies than a dozen fly-traps.

There is considerable doubt whether any trap which contains molasses, sugar or any such material does not draw in more flies than it kills, besides being a disgusting and uncleanly way of meeting this nuisance.

LATHROP RESIGNS.

San Francisco, Nov. 21.—Mr. Ariel Lathrop, who has had charge of Senator Stanford's enterprises here, has resigned his position and announces that he will return to his home in Albany, N. Y., to retire from active business duties. He says he feels the need of rest and that he is too old to longer shoulder the great responsibility entailed upon him by the management of Mr. Stanford's affairs.

THE BOARD OF CONTROL.

To the Editor: For some time past we have noticed a disposition on the part of some of our republican brethren to foist upon the people of Toledo a so-called "board of control."

This was first noticed about six years ago at a time when the democracy had complete control of the city government. At that time the republicans were ripping up all democratic city governments, and, with the connivance of a republican legislature and governor, stealing the democratic offices and placing republicans therein. So far as Toledo was concerned, it was such a bare-faced steal on the part of such an odorous gang, whose thirst for the high priced salaries of this proposed board of control was so obvious that Toledo people hooted it down. Soon thereafter the political complexion of the city government changed, some of the gang were satiated with office and they became quiescent, except to raise a howl of piracy when some of the democracy, following unscrupulous republican precedent, thought to retaliate and capture the republican offices by legislative enactment. This, however, was largely repudiated by the better element of the democracy and republican alike, and it failed. Now the democracy is in charge of many salaried offices again, and again the old republican boodle cry for a "three salaried board of control."

It will be specially noticed that this cry has been raised by degrees. First a faint peep. When no special opposition was shown, then the tone raised and now a roar, supposing they have blinded the people and made the weaker kneed believe that the volume of their roar indicates a public clamor. It is nothing of the sort. It is only one cry of the boodler blood suckers for the people's money.

What do we want with a board of control, anyhow? Are not the people able to govern themselves? Have we got so low that we must pay five or six "little tin gods on wheels" $4,000 or $5,000 each per year to rule over us and over our council elected by us?

Forsooth they tell us that a man cannot afford to serve as a city councilman without salary. Those who cannot should not seek or accept the office. That is what the writer did when he was nominated not long since. He could not afford it, and declined. Anyone else in the same fix should do the same. The result of the present councilmanic affairs shows they will have to hereafter.

It has been said we don't want people to work for us without pay. This is the most plausible of the lot, but it were much cheaper to pay 27 men $500 each than to pay four or five men $4,000 or $5,000 each, and will bring much better service. Even the state legislators receive only $500 each, and we have never had any difficulty in securing good legislature timber. Certainly a state legislator is away from home much more, is compelled to neglect his business much more than any of our city legislators! We have had and can still get good councilmanic timber for the honor there is in it.

But it is said that if the councilmen, or rather the proposed board of control, are highly paid, we will secure more honest men. This is the veriest silly rot. No one of good sense will be deluded by such stuff. Whoever heard of paying a man to make him honest? Our congressmen received fair salaries, and yet many were caught in the Credit Mobelier swindle. Were one or two exceptions all then serving were mixed up in the "salary grab." Even the late lamented President Grant did not hesitate to take $25,000 per year more than he was justly entitled to. Bank cashiers, county and other treasurers are proverbial for their agility in jumping over into Canada with the people's money. And yet high salaries will make a board of control honest! Bosh!

As a matter of fact it is a matter of history that it is much more difficult to ferret out a thieving conspiracy where only a few are connected with it, than where many. A few keep their secrets better than many. There are less men to buy. Their price may come high, but their deal is more quickly and secretly closed. It was Boss Tweed and but a few henchmen that filed the city of New York. A board of control, by whatever name it is called, is a dangerous thing, however shorn of power, and doubly so when vested with the power the gang who are attempting to make fat places for themselves, want it to have. Beware of it!

It has been claimed that our recent experience with some of our councilmen goes to show our system is defective, and the cry is now used by the plotters to try and cover the object of their nefarious scheme. A large council elected as ours is has the advantage of being close to the people. The members are elected from the various wards. They are usually personally acquainted with nearly, if not all, the residents of the ward. They are readily approachable by the people, and if they do not do their ward justice, they are held personally accountable. With a few men in a board of control, the reverse is largely the case. In addition the very size of the council is its safety. There is greater opportunity to scare a number of good men and in case of boodleism, it is much more readily traced. Some of them are sure to drop an incautious remark, which will lead to suspicion and then one or more squeal on the others. The recent battle trial instead of showing the weakness of our system, proves its strength.

Another claim has been made that we should have our government more centralized; that it should be arranged so as to hold some one person responsible. All I have to say to this is, this is a government by the people. We want no one-man power here. If anyone wants to live under a one-man power government this is no place for him; let him migrate to Canada, Germany, Russia, or elsewhere. We don't need him here.

In short, I have made considerable of a study of systems of government, and am satisfied that on the whole Toledo at present has the best system of government in existence. The question of the objects and advantages of a double headed legislative body is too well recognized and settled in this country to need discussion here. If any change at all be made, it should be only in minor details. For instance, the board of fire commissioners and board of park commissioners, the city clerk and one or two others should be elective. The mayor might be ex-officio chairman of all boards, with full powers as a member thereof. It would not be necessary for him to be present at all meetings, as a vice-chairman could act in his stead. The only question in this with me is, whether even this would not be too much of a centralization. At the utmost it is certainly the extreme power that should be vested in one or a few men. We must recollect that in our government we must be constantly on the alert against centralization, paternalism, and monarchy. It has been well said: "Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

No board of control or other boards of a similar nature have ever given satisfaction. Even in yesterday morning's Commercial, which editorially and by correspondence was whooping it up in favor of a board of control, and referring to Columbus and Cleveland, there appears in its telegraph columns notice of a call of the people at Columbus to take action to do away with the system in that city, which the local hungry gang are endeavoring to foist on us here.

Another thing connected with this latest move to steal the offices held by democrats and provide other fat places, is who is at the bottom of it. We see something in republican newspapers occasionally editorially and otherwise, but who is at the back of it? The schemers are just now foisting Mayor Emmick to the front as their cat's paw. But we know enough of Mayor Emmick to see through all that, but is it not curious that the manipulating hand is concealed? How does it happen that 60 or 70 are requested to meet? Who are they? Why are their names thus far kept secret? Beware, Mayor Emmick. The people of Toledo will not tolerate any such tampering with their rights. No such gang of 60 or 70, no matter how powerful or respectable they may consider themselves, can override the people, and I suggest to the people now that they watch this closely and spot the knaves for future reference, who, under a pretense of remodeling and improving our city government, meet and endeavor to fasten themselves upon us.

DESIRES TO BEAR TESTIMONY.

Henry Thorne, traveling secretary of the Y. M. C. A., writes from Exeter Hall, Strand, London, February 2, 1888:

"I desire to bear my testimony to the value of Allcock's Porous Plasters. I have used them for pains in the back and side arising from rheumatism and other causes, never without deriving benefit from their application. They are easily applied and very comforting. Those engaged as I am in public work which involves exposure to sudden changes of temperature will do well to keep a supply of Allcock's Porous Plasters in their portmanteaus."

ONE'S OWN BED.

"It's funny, when a man gets to be over 40, how he always longs for his own bed if he happens to be separated from it," said a returned summer sojourner at a meeting place.

"When I start toward home I always begin to give rein to my hitherto restrained desire to get home, and the main idea in my mind is to get into my own bed. It isn't because those I have been occupying nights are poor ones or because mine is superior, but there's a something unexplainable when you land your weary bones in it. Somehow it seems as if the outside world was not quite so powerful in its harassments. The sigh you heave when you pull up the sheets and put your head into the pillow is just about the same size and build you used to pump out when you were a little boy and had been fearfully homesick away for the first time from home. You can look back to that time, and see with clear eyes at long ranges through time's magnifier that it was not sick for home that you were, but just heart sick for your mother, and when you was once more with her, and bedtime came, how, after you were safely tucked in between the sheets she came with soft steps and her thin hand put up before the lamp to shade your face, and glided up to the bedside, stood there looking down—steadfast, solicitous, wistful faces of poor work-worn mothers! Make eyes have to see them now with memory's help."—New York Recorder.

HOW TO HAVE A GOOD DINNER.

So few persons have the privilege of a perfect Thanksgiving dinner, for the simple reason that the majority of individuals live at a distance from the abundant markets of our larger cities. But for all this, the success of a dinner depends greatly upon the tact and talent of the housewife. If she has the power to hold the appetite of her guests until the end of a thoroughly good dinner, and can assure them getting up from her table in a comfortable state of body and mind, she is indeed an artist, and would probably have the power to serve a lovely dinner, even in the midst of a forest.

Do not attempt a grand dinner, but have a satisfactory one. Begin your dinner, if it is convenient, with three oysters to each guest. This may seem a small allowance, but it is preferable to the conventional six. Have the plates filled with cracked ice and nicely garnished with water-cress, the oysters in their deep shells, neatly disposed of in the ice. Let your table be well laid with the best china you possess, and a spotlessly white table-cloth. Allow no dingy-looking goblet or dull silver to destroy the whiteness of the linen or the brightness of the table. Carl Benson tells us, "Over and over again have gorgeous feasts transformed into comfortable meals by the lack of clean plates, clean forks and clean glasses."

CAMBRIDGE IS POOR.

Public attention has recently been drawn to the embarrassing condition in which the old English University of Cambridge has been placed because of a failure of funds to maintain it. The vice-chancellor of this venerable institution, in a report made not long ago, said that never before was the strain to meet the necessary expenses, to say nothing of the outlay needed for the natural development of the teaching, been more seriously felt." It seems that the university has practically no endowment, and has been maintained by a revenue derived chiefly from fees, taxes and contributions from the colleges in the university. These colleges have been compelled through stress of circumstances to beg off from these payments of late. The university in the days of its prosperity assumed onerous obligations which are now felt with crushing force. And the difficulty is that there seems to be no proper and acceptable way in which relief can be sought. "Her dignity," says an English journal, "forbids recourse to the common methods of raising money. Bazaars are out of the question. Wealthy men interested in education should give out of their abundance to enable Cambridge to hold her own." The decadence of the old university, which has so long stood as a landmark to all educated peoples, could not be regarded as anything less than a most serious calamity in all parts of the world. Wealthy Englishmen ought not to hesitate to contribute most liberally, without waiting to be asked, so save to the world an institution which cannot well be spared.—New York Advertiser.

AT THE THEATERS.

Jack Mason and Marion Manola This Evening.

Under the Lion's Paw Opens Up at the People's—Rhea in Two Plays Thanksgiving—The Wonderland.

Under the Lion's Paw will be produced at the People's theater all this week. The play will be lavishly mounted with magnificent scenery. In the first act will be seen a beautiful moonlight view of the beach at Long Branch, with moonlight effects and the moon slowly rising, apparently from the ocean, during the action of the scene. The second act shows the circus business offices. In the first scene of the third act is seen the exterior of the circus and surrounding grounds. In the second scene is used no scenery, but a mammoth, regulation menagerie tent, stretching from wall to wall and entirely covering the stage. It is in this scene that Col. Boone and Milli Carlotta, with their seven monster Nubian lions, are introduced. The fourth act takes place in the parlors of the Hotel Ashley. The last act is one of the most unique settings ever seen on a stage, representing the interior of the winter quarters of the Circus Royal. There is seen all the paraphernalia of a great circus stored for the winter, and, in the center, a massive steel cage, containing the largest of Col. Boone's group of Nubian felines.

Jack and Marion.

This and to-morrow evenings Marion Manold and Jack Mason will appear at Wheeler's. Jack and Marion joined fortunes in London a year ago and are getting along famously. Mr. Mason has for several years been one of the most famous actors in Boston, and Miss Manold has created many of the leading soprano roles in light opera successes of the last five years. This evening they will present "If I Were You," and "The Army Surgeon." To-morrow evening "Cast" will be played.

Josephine and Princess Andrea.

M'lle Rhea appears at Wheeler's Thanksgiving afternoon in a notable revival of "Josephine," a play of historic and romantic interest in which she has already made two tours, the results of which were among the most brilliant of her many brilliant achievements since she first set foot on American soil. The manner in which she has staged and costumed "Josephine" this season will bear the closest inspection of even the severely critical. Few plays are so well embellished. Rhea is celebrated for sumptuous dress and for the regal mein with which she carries herself in it. It is the unanimous verdict of women (who know all about these mysteries) that no woman of the stage knows so well as Rhea how to wear her clothes. The fact is, it is with her a gift, not an art. She has thousands of imitators but not one peer. At the evenings performance Sardou's best comedy "Princess Andrea," will be presented.

At the Wonderland.

The Cowboy pianist will be one of the strong attractions at the Wonderland this week. The Zublens, who last season were with Monroe's Aunt Bridget's Baby company, will be a feature of the theater performance. There are numerous good things in both the musee and theater programs.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Toledo's Theosophy Club.

To the Editor:—As there is some misunderstanding in regard to the meetings of the Theosophy club, I would like to make some statements about them.

We meet every Thursday evening, usually at our home on Tenth street, at 8 o'clock.

A selected article is read and discussed, occupying about two hours in all.

We have no organization, as yet; no dues and no original papers—a refreshing lack of obligation, you may say.

Yes, that is true in a sense, but there lies upon us the facit duty to read and think along the lines of the best theosophical thought.

This is obviously necessary in order to full appreciation of the many fine and noble utterances of the leaders in this movement.

We welcome all who come as candid inquirers no matter what their religions or other beliefs may be, but suggest that a careful reading of works giving information as to the teachings of the various theosophical writers precede their attendance upon our meetings, as, otherwise, the time of the club may be consumed in removing misapprehensions easily avoided and going over ground traversed many times before.

Naturally, too, we do not solicit the attendance of those seeking only to gratuitously attack our views or to air pet personal opinions.

For the convenience of those interested we have on sale an assortment of the elementary literature of the subject.

As we are soon to be favored with a lecture by Mrs. Annie Besant, would it not be well for those intending to hear that gifted woman to read some of the clear and strong statements she has made concerning the wisdom religion?

I would recommend the following pamphlets:

"Why I Became a Theosophist."
"Evidences of Theosophy."
"Seven Principles of Man."
"Reincarnation."

Very respectfully,
JOHN M. WHEELER.

try after protection than before. It is foreign trade which increases national wealth. Suppose that there were a thousand vessels which took out from this country $5,000 worth of products, to exchange for foreign goods, and which returned with cargoes worth $10,000 each. Every dollar of the increased value is so much added to the wealth of America. Upon the hypothesis suggested there would be an addition to the wealth of this country of $5,000,000.

In all history it has been the nations which have most engaged in foreign trade which have been the most wealthy and prosperous. Tyre and Sidon, Venice and Constantinople, Hamburg and the free cities of Germany have all shone forth as the wealthiest cities in their eras. Their harbors have been crowded with the vessels of every country, and upon their wharves have been unloaded the products of every clime. Their streets have been crowded marts of trade, and their citizens have enjoyed, without stint, all the possibilities of the world's production. Great Britain, to-day, is the mistress of the seas. With her wharves, and her docks, her vessels and her colonies, that little stormy, foggy island has become the seat of an empire that controls the destinies of the world. By her policy of commercial liberty, she takes all that the world has to offer her, and keeps her millions busy in making articles for exchange.

But when America shall have proclaimed a similar policy, and shall enter into active competition with others in all the markets of the world, the prosperity of all the cities and nations I have named will be but as dreams in presence of the stupendous wealth which shall be ours. (Applause). With our merchantmen on every ocean, our sails on every sea, our adventurousness in every land, our products in demand by every people, America shall take the leadership of the nations and bring itself and the whole world into the path of plentifulness and peace.

I have always thought that our own city's special destiny in the new era and under the auspices of the new policy. The advantage of being a seaboard or lake city is that it is near the water which affords easy methods of intercommunication and exchange. But this advantage is all lost if tariff policies make exchange impossible, and then the city on the shore is not as well off as the city in the interior. A city like Columbus has all of its radii of trade reaching out in every direction, bringing all the business to it naturally tributary to it. But while Toledo has its radii to the south, the west and east, yet to the north and northwest, they are cut off by the tariff laws of the United States and Canada. Canada, so far as business is concerned, might as well be separated from us by the frozen seas of the Arctic regions, for the tariffs of the two countries put an end to trade between the peoples of the two countries.

But in the new day it will be different. I read the other day that since the election all the papers of Canada, without regard to politics, have united in insisting that their government shall follow the democratic party of the United States in every reduction it makes in the tariff rates. Then the wealth of Canada will pour into our port. Canadian vessels will crowd into our harbors with Canadian products, to be exchanged for American ones at our docks. The lumber of the Georgian bay, the ores of Canadian mines, and the products of Canadian toil will be brought here for exchange. I believe that of the wealth of this trade with more than 4,000,000 of people, Toledo will get a larger share than any other city on the line of the lakes. (Applause).

It means, therefore, a new era of prosperity for Toledo. A new source of wealth will be opened up, worth more than any other one on which we now depend. Canada trade will give a new impetus to Toledo trade, and this city will, for the first time, realize all the advantages which its position and location possess. (Applause).

And in this superb hour of magnificat, let all honor be given to the great leader who made the victory possible, who, despite opposition, protests and remonstrances, refused to put the great issue out of sight and who insisted that the battle should be fought on the lines of tariff reform and commercial liberty. (Applause). In congratulating ourselves, the democratic party, and the whole country, let us not forget the underlying debt of gratitude we owe to Grover Cleveland. (Vociferous and prolonged applause).

The chairman in a few words introduced the congressman-elect as "the friend of the people." Again the applause broke forth, and rolled back and forth through the hall in waves of sound. When he could be heard, Mr. Ritchie spoke thus:

Byron Ritchie's Address.

Mr. President, Fellow Democrats, Citizens, Neighbors and Friends: On the 22d day of February last, in mid-winter, at Albany, N. Y., there was assembled a political convention of the democracy, whose choice for president of the United States was an able and fearless democrat of the Empire state, in the person of the Hon. David B. Hill. (Cheers.) A gentleman who has helped to make a president, and who shall himself be president hereafter.

On the same day, and at the same hour, in our sister city of Ann Arbor, Michigan, wholly unmindful and perfectly indifferent as to his own future political career, stood a private citizen, also a distinguished son of New York, addressing a large gathering of college students upon "The Duties of American Citizenship." The speaker upon that occasion was that matchless citizen and superb leader, Grover Cleveland, (great cheering) of New York. He was the idol of his party then. He is the triumphant hero of his party now. (Cheers). It was my privilege and pleasure to listen to that address, and catch the burning words that fell from his eloquent lips. They were a statesman's words, and patriotism was their inspiration. With fervor, he cautioned his hearers against political intrigue, and told them of the stern duties of public life. Well do I remember his statement that the people of this government were not dead, but sleeping. Within a few months thereafter, with his own state instructed for another, with all the politicians of his party against him, he was nominated by the democratic party as its leader, and its political creed was published to the world. (Cheers). The political avalanche that has just swept across the land, shows the wisdom of the party's course. The thunder tones with which they spoke on November 8th show, as Gov. Campbell prophecied, "that the people of this government were not dead, nor sleeping either." (Cheers).

We rejoice to-night, not over a victory, but over a conquest won. (Cheers). Never before, in the history of political parties, were the issues so well defined. It was a contest between the masses and the classes. "Tariff Reform" was the battle-cry of a united democracy. (Cheers). To strike off the shackles that bound our commerce and our trade was our purpose. To cheapen the necessities of life—to reduce unwarranted and unjust taxation was our object. The election of Cleveland and Stevenson was the instrument (cheers), a kind and long suffering people was the power, and a positive, triumphant victory is the result. (Cheers).

What means this uprising of the populace?

What means this conquest won?

It means freer commerce and fairer trade.

It means wider markets and larger sales.

It means cheaper goods and cheaper clothes.

It means fairness to capital and justice to labor.

It means the enrichment of all and the impoverishment of none.

It means annihilation to trusts, and death to combines. (Cheers).

It means honest money for honest men.

It means the fullest liberty to the citizen.

It means free elections in a free land.

It means economy, frugality and reform.

It means, in short, a return to the constitution which our fathers drew. (Cheers).

Cleveland's election is a tribute to an honest man. A tribute to his character, a tribute to his devotion to duty and a tribute to the sublimity of his example. (Cheers).

By his tariff message in 1888 Grover Cleveland gave his party an issue that was alive and warm; and while we rejoice over his victory to-night we do not forget that here in Ohio, here in Toledo, here upon this very platform to-night sits a talented fellow-democratic citizen, who is the modern tariff pioneer of the United States. Upon this issue, and in this district, the Hon. Frank H. Hurd (cheers) led his party when his party feared and failed to follow; and when I say, as say sterling democracy, his legal knowledge and brilliant intellectual attainments, deserve a place in the president's cabinet, I but feebly utter a united party's united thought. (Great cheering).

And now, in conclusion, a word or two personal to myself and I am done. I wish I possessed the power of speech, I wish I could command the English language properly to thank the good people of this district for the distinguished honor done me, one of its humblest citizens. To have been chosen as your representative in congress, and to have been chosen over a distinguished, talented and experienced gentleman of opulence and influence, fills me with a sense of gratitude that I can illy express in words. From my heart, I thank you kindly. I can repay you only by devotion to duty, and by attention to the district's wants. Toledo is my home. Here have I lived since my childhood days. Here from your public schools, the poor man's college, did I go out into the busy world. I think I know somewhat of the city, and its commercial needs. Our harbor needs improvement and repair, and to secure therefor from the general government a large appropriation, commensurate with its needs, shall be my stern purpose and fond desire (Cheers).

Publicly do I wish to personally thank the republicans of this district for the generous vote they gave me, and without which my election were impossible. In return I can only promise to represent all the people of this district. Democrats and republicans alike—to the very best of my feeble ability—whatever aid I can render to any constituents shall be promptly and cheerfully given, and, especially, do I want to say that no crippled soldier, no needy, worthy marred veteran of the war, shall ever apply to me in vain, for aid in securing his proper generous reward on the pension roll of honor. (Cheers).

If a sincere desire to do my duty, and a true and steadfast devotion to this district's incerests, will avail anything, I hope to command and merit the confidence and regard of all.

I thank you kindly, once again.

The conclusion of the speech was greeted with cheers that lasted several minutes.

The chairman, remarking that the counties of Lucas and Wood were closely related commercially and socially, and now politically, said: "We have several gentlemen from Wood whom you want to hear. I introduce to you a democrat without guile, one who is recognized as a clear-cut democrat all over the district—Mr. Frank Baldwin, of Bowling Green." (Applause.)

Frank Baldwin's Address.

Mr. Baldwin began by giving the greeting of Wood county to the democracy of Lucas county and the Ninth district. He was glad to participate in the present joyousness. When he looked upon his democratic friends he could say: "These are they who have come up out of great tribulation; and they are now on top." If anybody had a right to be exceeding glad it was a democrat. (Applause.) The people have spoken with no uncertain sound, and pronounced the death-blow to class and sect legislation in these United States. They want no more paternalism, but a government for all the people, in favor of no particular class, but declaring that the man who stands between the plow handles is of as much consequence as he who runs a factory. It was a victory of the people, and the republicans had a right to rejoice with the democrats. He had always heard about the benefits of the republican protective policy, and he had not the moral courage to oppose the fallacy, even when Hon. Frank Hurd enunciated the doctrines in favor of which the people have now pronounced, and thereby took a position in advance of his party, and was willing to become a political exile; but, thank God, he is now the grandest man in the nation. (Cheers.) If there should be one bright particular star in the cabinet of the newly elected president that star should be placed above the head of Hon. Frank H. Hurd. (Great applause.)

The speaker referred very humorously to Col. I. D. Smead's protectionist work in Wood county, which "didn't go;" declared that the country would still have the protection of the stars and stripes—the flag that knows no class—the only protection needed by, and given by, the American people. (Applause.) He believed in the spoils to the victors, but not in spoiling the victory in a scramble for office. (Cheers.) There must be some privates or the Toledo Blade would have to go out of business, because all the colonels it has manufactured wouldn't have any regiment to command. (Cheers and laughter.) Besides, it was better to be a doorkeeper in the house of the Lord than to occupy high position in the sinful camp. The democracy had entered into a contract with the people, and history taught the people to trust that it would be carried out. (Applause.) The younger element could rejoice especially that one from their ranks had been selected to represent the people in congress, over "an old timer." (Cheers and laughter.) The iteration by the republicans of the benefits of a protective tariff was illustrated by the story of the universalist who placed at the top of the steeple of their church, in Vermont, the image of an angel with high-heeled shoes. The Methodist deacon asked the Universalist boss if he had ever seen an angel with high-heeled shoes. The Universalist didn't know as he had, but in turn asked the good Methodist brother if he had ever seen an angel without them. Now, the people have said that they want an angel without high-protection high-heeled shoes. (Great cheering.)

L. C. Cole's Address.

Hon. L. C. Cole, also of Bowling Green, was introduced by the chair as "another of the same kind." He first made a proposition to the horn blowers, to let him blow his horn first, and blow theirs when he got through.

A voice: "Let 'er go!" Then the horns seconded approval.

Mr. Cole declared that this was the most hilarious funeral crowd he ever saw. It hadn't a bit of respect for the dead. (Cheers and laughter and noise of the horns.) He wanted to say to the boys that they couldn't blow loud enough to resurrect 'em, nor would old Gabriel. They were dead. (Cheers.) "We are here to bury Caesar, not to praise him." (Laughter.) When Ritchie was nominated he had thought there might have been a mistake made in not going into Wood for congressional timber; but after hearing the eloquent speech of Ritchie he was satisfied. He was willing to let Ritchie take the seat in congress, and himself take a postoffice. (Cheers and horns.)

The democrats hadn't succeeded well in years past, because they had been flirting with the tariff question, and didn't have the courage to tackle it. Under Grover Cleveland in 1888 it was made a direct issue. It became a growing sentiment in 1892, was embodied in the Chicago platform and see the result. It wasn't the brigadiers on horseback that won. It was the American farmer, astride of his old mule, wielding his corn-cutter.

The promises of the republican party to get rid of the war tariff and the inconsistency af that party were touched upon, and an amusing picture presented of an imaginary telephone connection between Charley Foster and John Sherman when, in 1884, one was in the western reserve talking temperance and Sabbath reform, "giving the Dutch hell," and the other in Cincinnati "giving the Dutch taffy." The democratic party had always advocated the personal right of the citizen, and his right to trade with his fellowmen.

Another story illustrative of the sorrow of the republican office holders, brought down the house. An Irishman who had displayed frantic grief at the funeral of his wife, when the body was about to be removed from the house, was met the next day by a friend who remarked upon his going on as if crazy. When the bereaved man learned that this friend had not gone to the cemetery he said: "You should have seen me at the grave. I just raised hell." The republican office holders take it hard now; but wait till they have to go out. He didn't believe the rank and file of the republican party took it hard, but the office holders and the follows who lived and thrived on combines did.

He wanted to read a bit of poetry, and dedicated it to McKinley. It was a parody on "Mary's Little Lamb."

Our Mary had a little lamb,
And his heart was most intent
To make its wool, beyond its worth
Bring fifty-six per cent.

But a pauper girl across the sea
Had a small lamb also,
Whose wool for less that half that sum
She'd willingly let go.

Another girl who had no sheep,
Nor stockings, wool or flax,
But money just enough to buy
A pair without a tax,

Went to the pauper girl to get
Wool to shield her feet,
And make her stockings not of tax,
But both of wool complete.

When Mary saw the girl's design,
She straight began to wear
She'd make her buy both wool and tax,
Or let her legs go bare.

So she cried out "Protect" me from
That pauper's sheep wool free,
If made to keep both her legs warm
What will "encourage" me?

So it was done, and the people said
Where'er that poor girl went
One leg was warm with wool and one
With fifty-six per cent.

Now praise to Mary and her lamb
Who did this scheme invent,
To clothe one-half a girl in wool
And one half in per cent.

All honor, too, to Mary's friends,
And all protection's acts,
Who cheaply clothe the rich in wool
And wrap the poor in tax.

Continuing Mr. Cole asked: What does this cyclone mean? It means that the people demand the repeal of restrictive laws upon commerce; are opposed to favorite industries; that they will stand no more protection to the fellows who wear No. 10 boots and are trying to knock the brains out of their mothers with a nursing bottle; that they feel it is time to rid themselves of these incubi; that they favor broader humanity—the brotherhood of man—and are opposed to every force of sectionalism. Thirty years ago the advance of civilization in this country struck the shackles from three million slaves, and made our flag float over a free people; and in 1892 the people say the time has come to strike off the shackles from commerce and relieve the people; that the time has come when our flag should float over every sea, and give opportunity to the whole world to have the advantage of our civilization. The people have endorsed the policy of tariff reform, are ready and anxious for its adoption; and it only remains for Mr. Ritchie and his colleagues in congress to break down the walls The verdict means, "Down with the bars, and out to the sea." Millions are ready to deal with us on favorable terms, if we give them the opportunity. Why should we not give them that opportunity? Why not go into every land and take, not only the gospel of Peace, but the Horn of Plenty? We will have an inundation of prosperity; our flocks and herds will increase; our factories multiply till we become the workshop of the world. (Applause.) Our people have gone back to the traditions of the fathers, and declare anew that all men are equal in the eyes of the law; for the fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man. Oh, glorious destiny! Give our people the opportunity to exercise the genius and power which God has given them. (Great applause).

Chairman Lewis advanced and stated that the county central executive committees were entitled to commendation for the manner in which they had conducted the campaign. He would now give an opportunity for the horns. It would fill Mr. Eppstein with joy if all would unite with him in giving three cheers for the democratic party.

Chairman Eppstein led, and the cheers were given with such a will that the timbers of Memorial hall vibrated, while the tin trumpets joined with an ear-splitting bray. Thus the meeting ended, and everybody agreed that it was the greatest political affair in the history of the city.

Bugle Blasts.

Oh, what a night!

The rooster was a proud bird.

Max Eppstein was in his glory.

The tally-ho was right in line.

Joe Huber had a hickory ax handle.

Every boy and girl had a tin horn.

P. A. Allen engineered the serenaders.

Even Joe Huber whistled in his jubilation.

Mr. C. T. Lewis made a model chairman.

Everything was democratic Saturday night.

There should have been an overflow meeting.

The tin horns were too much for the speakers.

The ladies (God bless 'em) were out in good force.

Sheriff Byrant, of Wood, was on deck. He's all right.

The warmth of feeling conquered the chill of the night.

Wood county contingent carried greeting to Lucas.

Frank P. Isherwood was about as happy as they make 'em.

The policemen were unable to quiet the good-natured disturbances.

W. W. Montgomery, of Port Clinton, mingled with the throng.

When Max Eppstein took that drink of water it brought down the house.

Chief Raitz gave the boys carte blanche. They didn't abuse his confidence.

Wood County Cole agreed to accept a postoffice. He would be a dandy p. m.

Did you ever see such a hummer of a jollification? Not in a thousand years.

Harvey Scribner was a wall flower; seats were too scarce for him to find one.

Larry McCarty and his ten aides had enough to do in seating the big audience.

It was pretty near a Frank Hurd meeting, if the applause given was to be measured.

Wood county's delegation returned home at midnight, as jubilant as could be desired.

Half a dozen policemen were in the hall and about fifteen, all told, in the vicinity.

Some fellow in the rear of the hall displayed a broom, indicative of a clean sweep.

Col. Frank Cheney entertained Hon. L. C. Cole and wife at dinner prior to the jollificatiea.

Hundreds of people could not get into the hall; but these can read the speeches in the Bee.

The Wood county speakers were both witty and wise, and will always be welcome in Toledo.

Ritchie brought down the house when he said to those with horns: "Let me blow my bugle a little."

The fireworks in the tally-ho caught fire, and some one sent in an alarm and called out the department.

Larry McCarty was the right man in the right place as usher-in-chief. Larry knows his business.

Mr. N. B. Bacon was an interested listener to the eulogiums on his brother-in-law, Mr. Cleveland.

Editor J. C. Bollmyer, of Wauseon, was on hand, and used up half of his hands in applauding the speeches.

Lots of democrats who have not had a smile on their faces for four years thawed out in the general jubilee.

Police Commissioner Potter forgot his rheumatism, and cavorted about as if fresh from the Hot Springs.

Cabrie Cole, to pay a bet, drove Joe Popp, Mike Malone and John Coghlin all over the city after the parade.

Rudolph Brand, M. M. Eppstein and Congressman Ritchie were the recipients of serenades after the parade.

The stage decorations were artistic in every respect. Alderman Huberich showed great taste in the arrangement.

Byron Ritchie's address was a plain and positive proof that he will make a good representative in congress.

Tony Leon's orchestra was in the balcony and rendered boom-ta-ra, but Tony could not go up against the horns.

The sergeant in charge of the police squad declared that more women than men were blowing horns in the hall.

Chairman Lewis was very happy in his introductions, and made a very good speech himself, to start the ball rolling.

Jimmy Drummond, a Cleveland man through thick and thin, was early on hand and was the happiest man in the hall.

The ladies all rejoice over the victory of tariff reform; for they know, better than the men, what it means in the domestic economy.

Congressman Ritchie brought down the house when he referred to Frank Hurd as being worthy of a place in President Cleveland's cabinet.

"Mickey" Shea, Chairman Harrity's right bower, occupied a seat on the platform. Mickey celebrates the local and general victory with great gusto.

Republicans who attended the meeting were treated with such consideration that they could not find fault, if they would. Most of them wouldn't if they could.

The decorations of the stage were arranged by Messrs. George Meismiller and Wm. H. Buck, clerks for Neuhausel Bros., under the direction of Alderman Hubrich.

There were a great many ladies in the hall, and a number were supplied with tin horns, in the blowing of which they appeared to take as much pleasure as did the kids.

Judge Commager and Col. John W. Canary left the platform to address the overflow, but the fireworks, red fire and tin horns proved too much for them, and they returned.

Hon. Frank Hurd made a great speech, and the general opinion was that his appointment to a cabinet position would be a graceful and deserved recognition and a good thing for the nation.

On the tally-ho were E. F. Byrne, M. C. Sullivan, L. A. Young, J. T. Frederick, F. J. Staiger, Chas. Denston, Geo. Knauss (Bowling Green), W. A. Daugherty, Chas. Werner, Pat Hennahan, F. H. Gregory, John Manzer, John Bolan.

HOME-MADE TOOTH SOAP.

It Has a Pleasant Taste and Is Not Injurious to the Teeth.

A nice tooth soap, or a sweet smelling tooth powder, may be reckoned among the toilet articles which are the delight of every well organized woman.

But the best tooth soaps, in the language of the little girl, "cost money," and many a woman has been compelled to buy somethey less dainty than she wanted, because she could not afford to buy the gilt edge variety.

Here is a tooth soap which may be highly recommended. It is sweet smelling, nice testing and cleansing without having in its composition an ingredient which could possibly harm the teeth. Indeed, it is so mild that those who require a "gritty" soap must add pumice stone to the compound.

For this tooth soap get of powdered orris root a quarter of a pound, or powdered myrrh two ounces, of powdered white soap three ounces, of powdered saffron one ounce and of oil of lavender two drachms. Mix with one pound of precipitated chalk.

This makes quite a large quantity. But the soap keeps well. Should you not feel equal to mixing the ingredients yourself a druggist will toss them together for you, without charging you any more than the separate ingredients would cost if bought singly.

For the delicate teeth of children a good powder can be made from two ounces of castile soap, powdered and dried; one ounce of cuttlefish bone, powdered; four ounces of honey and a dash of lavender for perfume.

Try these.—New York World.

DICKENS WAS AN OFFENSIVE CRANK.

"I am a great admirer of the works of Charles Dickens, but I had a poor opinion of the man," said L. C. Courtney. "Dickens was a crank of an offensive class. Many peculiarities may properly be excused in a man of genius, but boundless egotism and bad taste are not of the number. When the author of the Pickwick Papers visited America, he succeeded by his boorish manners, in disenthralling thousands of his worshipers on this side of the Atlantic. He dressed 'loud,' and his manners were even more stunning than his dress. He was a great pedestrian and took long tramps every morning. When he was in Washington I met him one morning on the steps of the capitol. With me was a young congressman from Tennessee whom the great novelist had offended by his boorishness. That morning Dickens was in great good humor and full of talk. 'I have,' said he, found an almost exact counterpart of Little Nell.' 'Little Nell who?' queried the Tennesseean. Dickens looked him over from head to foot and from foot to head before he snorted out. 'My Little Nell.' 'O,' said the Tennesseean, 'I didn't know you had your daughter with you.' 'I am speaking of the Little Nell of my fiction, sir,' retorted Dickens, flushing. 'O,' said the imperturable Tennesseean, 'you write novels, do you? Don't you consider that a rather trifling occupation for a grown-up man?' Dickens snorted like a quarter-horse, and went down the avenue like Col. Bill Sterrett on his bicycle."—Globe-Democrat.

BIRDS IN INDIAN LEGENDS.

All primitive peoples regard the bird as specially wise and favored. Living in the air, he is regarded as exercising control over atmospheric phenomena, and knowing so well his own migratory seasons the Indians observe his flights as foreboding ill or good to themselves. The Hurons believe that the dove carries the souls of the departed hence. The Dakotas say the storm bird dwells so high as to be out of human vision, and carries a fresh water lake on his back, so that when he plumes himself it rains, when he winks its bright eye it lightens, when he flaps his wings thunder rolls. The Alaskans hold much the same idea about the "thunder bird."

Among them all the eagle is mighty, brave, aspiring, the symbol of their warriors for apparent reasons. The kingfisher is anxious to serve his brother man. In the Alaskan gallary in the exposition art department you will see him often carved, presenting upon his bill a frog to the medicine man that the latter may absorb the frog's power over enemies. In the Navajo gallery a sacred headdress or turban of kingfishers' scalps may be seen. The raven is mischievous, and many curious myths are told of his misconduct in diving into the sea, running fish from the brooks and all that. In all these curio rooms you will note how much is made of birds, but among the Alaskan curios bird lore is very prominent in their carvings and feathers in their sacred ornaments.—Minneapolis Journal.

Some people think that because it is called Liver Regulator it has nothing to do with Indigestion and the like. It is the inaction of the Liver that causes Indigestion, and that fullness; also Constipation, and those Bilious Headaches. LONDON LETTER.

English Opinion on the Election.

A Member of Parliament's Indignation.

Decrease of Trade in Highly Protected France.

Irish Members Sure to Accept Gladstone's

Home Rule Bill—Sir Charles Russell Will Be the Next Lord Chief Justice—The Queen's Expensive Household—A Duke Who Hated Women.

London, Nov. 21.—(Special Cable)—The presidential election is much discussed here in political circles at the present time. Although a democratic victory was anticipated, the manifestation of so powerful a revulsion of feeling against the party in power was a surprise to everyone.

A well-known liberal member of parliament, whilst discussing the result, expressed to me his indignation at the hostile tone adopted towards England by the republican party organs. "One would think," he said, "that England's commerce depended solely upon the United States. As a matter of fact, before the passage of the McKinley bill our exports to the United States only amounted to 5 per cent. of our total trade, so that it is not likely that a measure only affecting one-twentieth of our commerce is of such vital importance here as the tail-twisters seem to imagine. If America ever adopts free trade and is thus enabled to compete with us in the markets of the world, we shall probably be far more injuriously affected than by the operation of a dozen such laws as the McKinley bill. Those people who imagine that England wishes to see the United States a free trade country are very much mistaken."

Judging by the utterances of the large exporters here, they do not anticipate any great or immediate change in the tariff except upon raw materials. The high tariff, though pressing heavily upon some particular industries, has not proved so harmful to British commerce with America as was expected. Although the general export trade has been depressed, the exports to America have fallen less than those to other countries. Figures recently quoted by Sir John Lubbock in his address to the London Chamber of Commerce are regarded here as a triumphant vindication of Great Britain's economic policy. Sir John compares the total volume of trade of 1890 with 1880, and taking the United States and France as the two great protective countries, gives the following figures: French trade decreased £15,000,000, United States increased £20,000,000, United Kingdom increased £40,000,000. In the case of the United States, where statistics are compared, it was explained that the listener must bear in mind the enormous tracts of virgin land and the immense increase of population, which amounted to no less than 12,000,000, against 2,000,000 here.

Home politics are very quiet, but it is only the lull that precedes the storm. However, I think it probable that Mr. Gladstone will be successful in holding his majority together. The Irish members, although they will occasionally talk threateningly, will always register their votes in support of the government when the division bell rings. The home rulers cannot afford to precipitate another general election, as the result, whichever way it was decided, would prove disastrous to them. If a dissolution took place and the conservatives returned to power, coercion would be resumed. If the liberals were ousted from office by the Irish vote they would naturally show their resentment by refusing to help forward home rule in another parliament. The position, therefore, points to the probability of the Irish party accepting whatever bill is brought forward by Mr. Gladstone.

It is highly probable that Sir Charles Russell will be appointed lord chief justice very shortly. His legal attainments are of the highest order, and he is well calculated in every way to support the dignity of the great office. Sir Charles is probably the most brilliant man at the English bar. His professional income is about £20,000 a year, and he is one of the few remaining men in England who habitually take snuff. He has reduced snuff taking to a fine art. When cross-examining a witness and waiting for a reply to some skillfully worded question, he will pause with his arm raised and the pinch of the precious powder between his finger and thumb is arrested on its way to tintillate his olfactory nerves. The unhappy witness seeing the expectant attitude probably makes some hasty admission, the snuff is conveyed to its destination and a long-drawn a-ah! from Sir Charles proclaims that he has gained his point.

People frequently refer to the vast amount of money the queen is supposed to have accumulated but when we consider what it costs to maintain the royal household we may well doubt whether her majesty's savings are as large as they are popularly supposed to be. Nearly a thousand people are included in the queen's household. The vast establishment is divided into four departments, presided over by the lord chamberlain, the lord steward, the mistress of the robes and the master of the horse. The lord chamberlain has a salary of £2,000 a year, the vice chamberlain £924, the lords in waiting £702, the pages of the back stair (five in number) receive £250 a year. These gentlemen's duties are to wait while her majesty is at table, and one of them is always obliged to be in continual attendance at the door of the room in which the queen may happen to be, from morning to night. They are also the guardians of the magnificent and marvellous gold plate which decorates the royal banqueting table on state occasions. No monarch in the world can show anything to compare with it, although that possessed by the Goldsmiths' company is very splendid, too. The maids of honor are usually eight in number and were instituted by the consort of Edward I. When on duty the work of these ladies is by no means light. In the morning they spend a good deal of their time reading aloud to the queen articles from the papers, specially marked, and later on in the day it is the duty of the maid of honor in attendance to accompany her majesty on her drive. Their day's work is done when the queen retires to dress for dinner, which takes place at 9 o'clock. Their salaries are £300 per annum, and should one of them be married, it is customary for the queen to make her a present of £1,000. The mistress of the robes receives £500 per annum, and is assisted by eight ladies of the bedchamber. These ladies are chosen from the highest families in the land and their selection is considered a high mark of royal favor. In the general household work a staff of seventy housemaids is required, their work being directed by nine housekeepers. Although to an American this condition of affairs probably appears very ridiculous and whilst in the abstract it cannot be justified, yet Englishmen are naturally so tenacious of the institutions that it will probably be a long while before such anomalies are abolished. The expenditure though appearing extravagant is hardly appreciable in the finances of a nation.

Thousands of American tourists every season visit Welbeck Abbey, the magnificent seat of the Duke Betland. The duke has given instructions that a charge of one shilling shall be made to each visitor to his unique residence, the proceeds to be devoted to local charities. This fund for the past year reached the respectable total of £1,033, and was duly distributed. Welbeck Abbey, in addition to its many other attractions, is remarkable for its long and imposing subterranean carriage drive under the park. The late duke of Portland was very eccentric. He was a misogynist and his dislike for the gentler sex was so strong that he would not permit even a female domestic to enter any of his numerous splendid town and country houses. It is to this ungallant duke that the abbey owes much of its modern embellishments, for he had a mania for making alterations and improvements. He lavished vast sums upon building operations and himself designed the peculiar drive referred to above. He loved to surrounded by gangs of laborers and all those who were employed upon his works had strict instructions to show no sign of deference or attention when his grace "took a hand at a job," as it was his frequent custom to do.

THE BEE'S DAILY BULLETIN

The Latest Fads and Fancies for Those Who Make Dress a Fine Art.

(Special correspondence of the Bee.)

New York, Nov. 21.—Fur as a trimming is conspicuous in millinery this season. It is regularly admitted as a favored ornament, without reference to temperature, while its sphere of usefulness is extended to smart hats and dressy bonnets, instead of its being reserved merely to the more ordinary head-gear of every-day life. Sable, skunk, martin and other brown furs are the sorts most in use, whereas formerly the only skins used for the purpose were those of the Persian lamb and seal. But feathers beat fur, and the sex will be feather-headed this winter with a vengeance.

Feathers to the right of them,
Feathers to the left of them,
Feathers in front of them,
Nodded in splendor.

That is the hat of the present. Make a wheel of your plumes, fasten a jewel in the center of a "hub" and swirl out the feathers for spokes. Then go out in the wind and try to make the wheel turn around, and you will hear some woman say: "Oh, look at that elegant hat!" and an elegant hat it will be, too, for that matter. Here I predict that we are going to get hats wider and wider. Presently the face set so far back of the glorious sweep of the brim will need a more intimate framing. Then we will have, first, a little frill of lace sewn in around the circle of the crown, to lie against the hair, then we shall have the dear little caps, all soft, close ruffles, and tied under the chin with curls pushed against the cheeks, and over this the big hat will go, making a lovely background to the face, while it will be framed in so sweetly by those same strings and that same edge of cap.

HOME POSTOFFICES.

Letters To Be Posted Without Going Out.

Boxes May Be Fitted Up for Each House for Both the Receipt and the Posting of Mail Matter.

House collecting letter boxes have already been described in the Bee, in connection with the successful tests made with them during the past two years. They have been adopted by the postoffice department, and the most approved box is the invention of Alfred D. Cushing, of Norristown, Pa. The Postal Improvement company has been formed in that city for the manufacture of the Cushing boxes, and will be ready to deliver them by the first of next month. Postmasters in the larger cities, including Toledo, have been notified of the fact that they will be furnished with all necessary sample boxes for inspection by the public and that the company making them will sent a representative to deal with those who desire to use them. They can be furnished under $2 each; or as high as $75, but these latter are handsomely finished and include a door-plate.

The inside box is fixed to the inside of the door or wall, and contains openings through which the people of the house can post and take out mail, and the carrier, using his key, can take out posted mail or put in matter for delivery. The posting of a letter inside throws up on the outside a bit of metal with the word "Mail," showing the carrier that there is mail matter to collect. By using phosphorous this can be seen at night. The box is so arranged that the carrier can drop in letters readily; or, where necessary, open a large door for parcels. Matter thus deposited falls into the lower part of the box, whence it can be removed by the opening of a door at the bottom, which door acts as a tray to hold the mail matter as it falls out. The upper part, into which mail is posted, is separated from the other by a tray, which drops when the carrier opens the front, and permits the contents to fall down and outward. The indicator with the word "Mail" is also thrown out of sight by the opening of the box by the carrier.

Outside boxes are somewhat different in construction, but similar in principle. Letters are inserted at the bottom and taken up by an arrangement of pins, and the carrier removes posted matter from the side of the box.

An arrangement has been perfected whereby householders can purchase stamps from these boxes. The tests in cities have been quite satisfactory both for collection and delivery. Tests made in several small villages have been for delivery only, and they, too, have been satisfactory. The company now proposes to try both delivery and collection in villages, and also to equip a genuine rural district with the boxes, using mounted carriers.

Conforming to customs of the past in the observance of Thanksgiving day, the Wheeling & Lake Erie railway fails not in showing its appreciation of the many favors extended by its patrons during the past year, and as an acknowledgement of the obligations resting upon it, offers to those desiring, the use of its road in traveling to and from their Thanksgiving feasts, Excursion Tickets at Half Rates, Wednesday and Thursday, November 23 and 24, with the privilege of returning as late as Friday, November 25, 1892.

All agents of this company are instructed to comply with this notice and cause all to feel that we respect the day, and forget not those seeking the way to join in its observance. JAMES M. HALL, General Passenger Agent.

SILVER COINS FOR SALE

The World's Fair Directors

have 5,000,000 Souvenir Half-Dollar Coins in their Treasury, the gift of the American People by Act of Congress. The patriotic and historic features of these coins, their limited number compared with the many millions who want them—have combined to create so great a demand for these World's Fair Souvenir Coins, that they are already quoted at large premiums, and we have received offers from syndicates who desire to absorb them for speculative purposes.

This is the People's Fair—

We Are the People's Servants—

and this divided sense of duty confronts us:—

We need Five Millions of Dollars to fully carry out our announced plans—

Shall we allow speculators to absorb the whole issue and retail them to the people, or, Shall we go direct to the people—appeal to the inherent desire for a "Souvenir Coin" that is in every American's heart, and allow them to possess a coin that will be a family heirloom in generations to come—and help on their own Fair!

We have decided to Deal Direct with the People---

To Whom We are Directly Responsible---Among whom an Equitable

Distribution of these National Heirlooms should be made.

The World's Fair Offer to the American People:

We have 5,000,000 Souvenir World's Fair 50-cent Silver Coins, from whose sale we must realize $5,000,000, that none of our plans for the people's profit be curtailed. This means that we must get one dollar for each of these coins, a much smaller sum than the people would have to pay if they obtained them through any indirect medium. Every patriotic man, woman or child should endeavor to own and cherish one of these coins. All cannot, as there are only 5,000,000 pieces among 66,000,000 people! This will make them valuable in future years—a cherished object of family pride. Notwithstanding our ability to sell these coins, at a premium, to syndicates, we have enough confidence in the people to keep the price at a Dollar for Each Souvenir Coin, as this will make us realize $5,000,000—the sum needed to open the Fair's gates on the people's broad plan.

World's Fair Souvenir Coin for a Dollar.

How to Get The Coins.

Go to your nearest Bank, and subscribe for as many coins as you need for your family and friends. These Sub-Agents of the World's Columbian Exposition will give you their receipt for your money, as delivery of these coins will not begin before December. There will be no expense to you attending the distribution of the Souvenir Coins, as we send them to your local bank. If for any reason it is inconvenient for you to subscribe through a Bank, send Post Office or Express Money Order, Registered Letter, or Bank Draft, for as many coins as you wish, with instructions how to send them to you, to

MARKETS OF THE WORLD

Receipts of Wheat in Toledo Are Small.

Visible Supply Has Materially Increased.

What People Are Selling and the Price They Are Receiving in the Sale Places.

The receipts of wheat at Toledo to-day are 4,975 bu less than on the corresponding Monday in 1891.

The receipts of wheat at seven points are 214,811 bu less than in 1891. The receipts of northwest wheat are 53,459 bu less, and at five other points are 161,352 bu less than in 1891.

The visible supply of wheat increased last week 2,331,000 bu. Corn decreased 878,000 bu. Oats decreased 274,000 bu. In the corresponding week in 1891 wheat increased 2,186 000 bu; corn, 144,000 bu, and oats, 171,000.

The receipts of wheat to-day at Minneapolis and Duluth are 968,444 bu., and at five other western points 294,951 bu.; total, 1,263,395 bu. On the corresponding Monday in 1891 the receipts at same points were 1,478,206 bu., including 1,021,903, leaving as the movement at the five other western points 456,303 bu. compared with 294,951 to-day.

The export clearances Saturday at four Atlantic ports were: Wheat, 268,513 bu., and flour to an aggregate of 330,000 bu.

English markets are dull for wheat and a shade better for corn.

The visible supply of grain is now: wheat, 69,536,000 bu.; corn, 12,235,000 bu.; oats, 7,921,000 bu. In 1891 at corresponding date it was: wheat, 41,504,000 bu.; corn, 19,500,000 bu.; oats, 4,645,000 bu. The quantity of wheat is in excess of any previous year. The quantity of corn is certainly not excessive. It is 7,275,000 bu. less than in 1891, at corresponding date.

The wheat markets have not shown much strength to-day. English markets opened and closed without encouraging signs of an advance. The receipts at northwest points for three days have been large, and the information from there to-day leads to the belief that, with good weather, the movement will continue large until December; that interior elevators are full. Receipts of winter wheat are less to-day than last year. See analysis of receipts herein. Under these conditions wheat has only declined at Chicago about 3-8c.

Corn has been maintained and while nothing new has occurred, prices close about steady.

RUNAWAY AT A FUNERAL.

Brown City, Mich., Nov. 21.—While the body of Joshua Summers was being taken into the cemetery for interment yesterday the horses attached to the hearse became frightened and ran away.

The horses and hearse were thrown into a ditch, the casket fell through the glass window and the corpse fell out of the coffin and was badly mutilated by the vehicle rolling over it.

The horses attached to the carriage following the hearse also became frightened, ran away and the occupants, a son and daughter of the dead man, were badly injured.

MAY BE SERIOUS.

St. Marys, O., Nov. 21.—(Special)—Nick Kuss and Pat Luby, of Findlay, Ohio, both members of the bridge gang, got into a quarrel at their boarding house. The former pulled a pocketknife and threw it at Luby, the blade entering his body below the heart and inflicting a dangerous wound.

Kuss was arrested and lodged in jail. He will have a hearing to-day.

Carnegie Refuses to Take Back Many of His Workmen.

Beaver Falls, Pa., Nov. 21.—There was considerable excitement about the office of the Carnegie mills this morning when the old men presented themselves for work. All expected to go to work with the exception of the six members of the advisory board. This morning about fifty old men were refused, which was quite a surprise to them after the developments of Saturday. The action has caused no little talk and considerable feeling among the men. The rod mill started and everything is quiet.

ORIGINALITY.

It Is as Great a Charm as Any Woman Can Possess.

No greater charm can any woman possess than originality. If there is something bright and striking about her that individualizes her among the many, singles her out from the crowd as something different, she is rarely blessed. But this gift of originality must be born in her; it can never be acquired, for once let a woman start out to prove by erratic methods that she is not like others of her sex and she becomes conspicuous.

It is far better to be commonplace than conspicuous. With the former, certainly, having so many companions, you escape the ridicule and the contempt that the efforts to be one entire thing down upon you. If it comes naturally to you to do and say things that no one else would ever dream of saying or doing, you are all right, but when you are aware in your secret heart that you have studied certain speeches for the effect they would produce, and wear your gowns or your hair in such a manner that you know people will turn to look after you and remark on your extraordinary attire or coiffure, then you are deliberately courting a kind of attention that is not the least bit desirable.

Good taste should govern speech and dress. If you do not wilfully say or wear anything with the avowed purpose of making a sensation, yet notwithstanding it does make a most decided one, you are not to blame and may lay the fault at the door of ignorance or an originality of mind or taste that distinguishes you from the rest of womankind. But be very sure that in your desire to be witty or stylish you do not plan speeches and gowns that will serve to make you conspicuous. There are many worse things than being commonplace. Noble, lovely, every-day women have lived and died whose quiet demeanor, generous affections and rare unselfishness have made them models to be copied by many who aspire to make a stir in the world and spend their time and talent in a vain endeavor to become famous, but owing to their lack of genuine originality or real talent never do more than make themselves ridiculously conspicuous.

SMOULDERING TRUTHS.

THE INDIAN SUMMER.

Bright autumn days, the dying year's last gift,
Like ripe fruit garnered up by careful hands,
O stay! nor, like impatient swallows, lift
Your wings to bear you to soft southern lands.

These fallen leaves I tread with scarce a pang,
Remembering all their kindly summer shade,
(How here the music of the thrushes rang),
Though leaves may wither, memories will not fade.

These rocks, so cold and bare to other eyes,
Are written o'er and o'er; and as I read,
Old scenes, old friends on either hand arise,
And bid me on my onward course God-speed.

For onward still through autumn days I toil,
Though storms may break on homesteads white with snow;
Though wintry Death should lay me in the soil,
My soul, a migrant bird, would heavenward go.
—Beatrix L. Tollemache.

HATS IN PARLIAMENT.

The Etiquette of Head Covering in the House of Commons

Nowhere is the unwritten law of fashion in regard to headcovering more strict than at Westminster. The chimney-pot is de riguer. A man may give his fancy considerable play in the matter of clothes, but the great hat ordinance must be observed. The only concession made is in the case of messengers of the opposition whips, who wear the plebeian billycock. But this is not because the men themselves prefer the more humble headgear. They are compelled to wear it presumably as a badge of the fallen condition of their employers, and when the government changes hands the messengers of the two parties will, metaphorically speaking, change hats.

Sharkey. Her beautiful is that he may not even enjoy the luxury of going about without a hat. Parliamentary custom has ordained that the whips of the respective parties shall be the only people, save the uniformed servants of the house, who shall appear in the lobby or anywhere within the precincts of the house without a hat. Should you chance to offend against this rule you are soon made aware of your delinquency by the frowns of the great ones in authority, who insist on the covered head with as much emphasis as the custodian of the Mohammedan mosque insists on the ecoval of the shoes.

The hat, therefore, plays a great part in parliamentary life, and on that account the headgear of the new members is very critically inspected by their brother legislators who have had previous experience in parliamentary life. On the whole the budding statesman seems to have a pretty accurate notion of what the necessities of the situation demand, and the hats are en regle. Even Mr. Dadabhai Naorgi, the Parsee member for Finsbury, wore the orthodox "stove-pipe," though in doing so he broke one of the most stringent sumptuary rites of his race, and placed himself in danger of excommunication. There were, however, some notable exceptions to the general rule. Mr. Burns, for example, figured in the democratic billycock, and Mr. Davitt in a Keir Hardie sported a marvelous arrangement in the shape of a tiny tweed cap, such as railway travelers affect. —Yorkshire Post.

EARTH BURIAL.

The Dangers That May Attend the "Dust to Dust" Method.

The products of a decomposing human body are, besides water and non-volatile minerals, carbonic acid, carbureted and sulphureted hydrogen, ammonia, nitrous and nitric acids and other offensive vapors. Dr. Parker tells us that each decomposing human body generates annually about fifty cubic feet of carbonic acid gas; that the atmosphere of thickly populated cemeteries contains ordinarily more than double the normal proportion of carbonic acid gas and other deadly exhalations, and that the atmosphere of burial grounds is freighted with the germs of almost every form of zymotic disease.

Pasteur's experiments have proved that earth worms bring to the surface myriads of bacteria from the bodies of the decomposing dead. As an evidence of the vitality of these germs, Drs. Koch, of Germany; Ewart and Carpenter, of England, declare that the blood of animals dying of splenic fever may be dried and kept for years and pulverized into dust, and yet the disease germs survive with power to produce the infection. Dr. Friere, of Rio de Janeiro, while investigating the causes of a recent outbreak of yellow fever, came upon the dreadful fact that the soil of the cemeteries in which the victims of the epidemic were buried was positively alive with microbian organism, exactly identical with those of the vomitings and blood of persons who had died in the hospitals of yellow fever. This characteristic parasite, says the doctor, "permeates the soil of cemeteries, even to the very surface." From a foot underground he gathered a sample of earth overlaying the remains of a person who had died a year before, and, though it showed nothing remarkable in appearance or smell, under the microscope it proved thickly charged with these yellow fever germs. The cemeteries he pronounces "nurseries of yellow fever."

People who wonder at the change that has come over our New England villages, the homes of a vigorous ancestry, and deplore the advent of this mysterious "malaria," the unseen vampire that sucks the red blood of the present generation, would do well to look about them and see how the graveyards, old and new, have grown in two centuries; how the town has surrounded them, how the water supply is from the same old wells; how the town, never having arrived at a magnitude seeming to demand a sewage system, allows the refuse of generations to mingle with the surface soil. It would be a theme worthy the magic pen of Hawthorne! Imagine his description of water percolating through the grave of some despised Lazarus, feeding the well of his life enemy, Dives, and compelling him daily to quaff the poison his own cruel ignorance had distilled!

The continuous burial of dead bodies in the midst of these villages is practically like sweeping house refuse year after year into the cellar, shutting the door upon it, to wonder at the appearance of disease and malaria in beautifully kept upper rooms!—R. E. Whitman, U. S. A., in Kate Field's Washington.

IN OLDEN TIMES

People overlooked the importance of permanently beneficial effects and were satisfied with transient action, but now that it is generally known that Syrup of Figs will permanently cure habitual constipation, well-informed people will not buy other laxatives, which act for a time, but finally injure the system.

AGE IS NOT A DISEASE.

At Sixty Everyone Surely Should Be Well.

Sometimes the Brain Needs Food and Nerves Are Shaky.

Many Are "A Good Deal Out of Fix" Like L. H. Chamberlain.

Because a man is growing old he need not be an invalid. Old age is not a disease.

A man at 60 should certainly be well; and many at 70 are as well as ever in their lives.

But as old age comes on, the brain requires food and the blood nourishment. Like Mr. L. H. Chamberlain, whose likeness is here given, many elderly people these days are "a good deal out of fix."

L. H. Chamberlain.

They need to do as he did. Mr. Chamberlain's home is in West Brookfield, Mass., from where he writes of the simple way in which he was cured. Says he: "I was troubled with rheumatism in my right arm and shoulder. The doctors had done me no good, but Paine's celery compound did me so much good that I was soon well! It not only helped my rheumatism, but I was a good deal 'out of fix' otherwise, and it did me a sight of good.

"Later I was taken sick with the grippe for the first time in my life, and it wouldn't leave me. So I used Paine's celery compound again and it cured me of the effects of the grippe in a very few days. My wife has taken one bottle of the compound for liver trouble and rheumatism, and it has helped her quite as much as it has me. She thinks as I do, that there is nothing like it. One lady, a friend of ours, is giving it to her little girl for nervousness, and says that it has already done her more good than any other medicine that she ever took. I lose no opportunity to recommend Paine's celery compound to my friends."

E. L. Cope.

E. L. Cope, of Allentown, Penn., gives another example of the beneficent effects of this greatest of remedies, the discovery of Prof. Phelps of Dartmouth college. Says Mr. Cope:

"I am taking Paine's celery compound for nervous debility, from which I have been a sufferer a long time. I could not sleep well nights, had pains all over my body for a while after retiring, and did not know what to do for myself. I saw Paine's celery compound recommended in our daily paper, and concluded to try it. Before I had taken a bottle I found myself much improved. I can sleep better, and the pain has nearly all left me. I am getting better every day, and feel as though I was growing younger, though I will be 5 years old on the 12th of next July. You may publish the above statement in the interest of suffering humanity afflicted with nervous debility as I was."

DEFIANCE TO PICKPOCKETS.

How an Ingenious St. Louis Man Protects His Loose Jewelry.

I have noticed in the newspapers very often lately, says a correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, about persons missing their watches by having them stolen from their pockets by pickpockets. I have for the past year used an invention of my own for security and several times I have had it taken out by such persons, but they had to let it go.

The idea is this: I have a strong nickelplated chain with a tiny lock and key, the kind that is used on bicycles. One end is fastened on the stem of the watch (not on the ring). I have also two pennies with holes one-eighth of an inch in diameter in the center, and a screw through top part of the pocket from the outside, because it seemed to me that was the strongest part of the pocket; then I pass the end of the chain on the screw, put on the other penny and then the nut, tighten the screw, put on the other penny and then the nut, tighten it, and the chain can be left to hang outside or not.
